PROTECT AGAINST DISEASE.
I have practiced medicine here for forty-five years and the last ten years have studied how to prevent disease, and have learned that medicines that will cure a disease will prevent it; what will prevent, will cure. This is a law of nature. It generally takes nine days to prevent, and from six to nine to cure. These five infections and contagious diseases can generally be prevented, and cured at least eighty per cent. of them: Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, Whooping Cough, Measles and Small Pox.
Medicines can be sent by mail with plain printed directions and the expense for either prescription will be only One Dollar and three 2-cent postage stamps.

A PLUNGE TO DEATH.

New York Central Train Goes Into the Hudson.

The Embankment Gave Way Beneath the Engine.

More Than a Score of Persons Meet Instant Death.

A Number of Chinamen Among the Victims.

Sleeping Cars Rolled Into the River and the Escape of So Many Passengers Was Miraculous.

GARRISON, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Without an instant's warning twenty souls were hurled into eternity early yesterday morning in a railroad horror which is almost without parallel. Train No. 46, of the New York Central and Hudson River, was thrown down the embankment a short distance below Garrison's station, and plunged into the river. The officials say there were 109 persons on the train.

Train No. 46 was made up of engine No. 372, an express car, a combined baggage and smoking car, a day coach and six sleeping cars, Glen Alpine, Hermes, Niobe, Diana, Anita and Raquet River, in the order given. The train was in charge of William Parrish, one of the oldest of the company's conductors.

It passed Garrison at 4:47 o'clock and was running at the usual rate of speed. When about three miles this side of the station the rails seemed to suddenly sink beneath the weight of the engine. With a deafening crash and the hiss of escaping steam the engine plunged down the embankment, dragging with it all but three of the sleeping cars.

CAUSE OF THE DISASTER.

The disaster was due to the breaking of the sea wall, which for forty years and more has been a bulwark between the waters of the river and the railroad tracks. A narrow lane of crumbled earth marks the place where there were ties and rails. The state railroad commissioners are here investigating the cause of the accident.

The train left Buffalo at 7:30 o'clock yesterday evening. It went out ahead of the Buffalo express, which usually preceded it, for the reason that the express was delayed taking on scenery for the theatrical company headed by James J. Corbett. There was a difference of about twenty minutes between the two trains.

The roadbed between Garrison and Highlands runs close to the river. The Hudson is here forced between headlands. The channel is deep and the current swift. The water within a few feet from the shore is fifty feet deep. A few strokes of an oar brings the boatman to a channel 100 feet in depth. The retaining wall which buttresses the railroad embankment is of rough stone. Midway between Garrison and Highlands is a marble dock, to be henceforth known as the place near which one of the great tragedies of American railroading occurred.

HOW THE HORROR OCCURRED.

The sun was just glinting over the highlands of the Hudson, revealing the red and gold of autumn upon the wooded heights, when the train and its sleeping passengers were dashed into the stream. The train left Garrison on time, at 5:47. She sped for nearly two miles, then there came a crash, three jars which shook the string of cars from end to end, a grinding of wood and steel and glass, and them the cars fell over the embankment into the river.

The earth had burst from its retaining wall, the rails curved outward with the advance of the engine, then the fish plates broke and sent the Buffalo special to its doom.

The engine, following the rails, parting out at an angle of thirty degrees, dashed into the river. It buried itself in the flood. John Foyle, the engineer, and John Tompkins, the fireman, went with it. Their bodies are in the channel, many fathoms deep. They were drowned at their posts.

TAKING OUT THE VICTIMS.

One end of the Glen Alpine rolled under the Hermes, and the Niobe left the track and rolled half over. The Diana, Anita and Raquet River stood upon the track, though all were damaged by the shock. The shrieks of men, women and children arose from the splintered cars as they sank into the Hudson.

Those who went to their death were in the combination car and the day coach. The occupants of the combination coach had no chance for their lives.

There were a dozen or more Chinamen there and the poor wretches shrieked and ran about their pen of wood and glass. The waters of the river rose foot by foot. The doomed men leaped to the seats and, clinging to the racks, smashed the glass of the ventilators with their fists. The cries of the Chinamen still ring in the ears of those who were actors in the tragedy of the rail. Only two of the Chinamen escaped.

The day coach, in which was the greatest loss of human life, was a floating death trap. It was taken by the tide and carried down the stream. It was like a galley, scuttled and sinking, where slaves chained to their seats at the oars go with one last cry to their doom in the sea.

Conductor Parrish, who was in the day coach, managed to escape through a window and gained the shore. William Carr, a Wagner porter, and a passenger jumped into a small boat near the dock and signaled a tug which they saw approaching. The brakeman of the rear car had meanwhile ran back to signal the express which was approaching.

The passengers of the sleeping cars, hurled from their berths by the shock, ran shrieking to the doors. The vestibules of all except the last two sleepers were broken. The first sleeper, the Glen Alpine, was submerged at the forward end. The passengers rushed to the rear end to escape the flood. The car was tipped up, and to those who were confined within it seemed as though the waters were rising further.

WORK OF RESCUERS.

The work of rescue was quickly carried on with such means as could be found. There were some cool heads, and to them is due the credit of saving many lives. The axes in the glass boxes fixed to the sleeping cars were torn from their fastenings and porters, brakemen and conductors led the work of rescue. The passengers of the train behind, which had come up shortly after the accident, lent their aid.

James J. Corbett, the pugilist, and his manager, Mr. McVey, lost no time in getting to the wreck. The pugilist leaped upon the car in which the Chinamen were imprisoned, and with an ax cut a hole through the roof. With the aid of some of the trainmen, he dragged out two of the Chinamen through the aperture. The miserable creatures were hanging to the ventilators.

The crew of the tug John A. Logan performed the first rescue. They had seen the signals of the boat rowing out to them and had also seen the floating wreck. The tug left a wake of roaring water behind, as she steamed toward the half submerged day coach. As the tug came alongside the car, deck hands jumped upon the roof, and with axes tore off the sheathing in several places.

The men at work upon the roof, as their axes tore openings, heard the shrieks of the passengers below, which soon subsided to groans, and gradually ceased altogether. They saw, nevertheless, fingers lose their hold upon the ventilator windows, and then heard the sound of bodies dropping into the water.

Distressing Scenes at the Place Where the Frightful Wreck Occurred.

GARRISON, N. Y., Oct. 25.—The gray day dawn, twenty-four hours after the frightful happening of yesterday, broke upon a scene of greater litter and property destruction than yesterday's sun and last night's torchlight displayed. The weary gangs of wreckers were relieved early this morning by fresh ones and the work of getting the chains from the derricks upon the submerged cars was vigorously prosecuted. As the wreckage was pulled from the bottom of the river and placed on shore it added to the picturesque though distressing sight.

When the wreckers got sufficient tackle on the sleeping car Glen Alpine to drag her up, there was much excitement and speculation, as it was believed that there must surely be some bodies in this car, the most deeply submerged of the lot. When the car had been placed on the scow and the water had run out of it, a searching party went through, and to the relief of the railroad officials and everybody near, not a body was discovered. Some curious things were found, however, which tends to make the escape of the passengers in this car almost miraculous.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES.

Not only were the blankets and curtains thrown down and jammed into the front of the car, but the seat bottoms, which at night serve as bed bottom, the mattress and pillows and every movable thing in the car had been jammed from side to side and from end to end of the car in a manner that would seem to almost preclude the possibility of any persons in the car escaping. It is believed, however, that all in this car escaped, and as there were a full score of hand-bags and satchels in the car there must have been that number of passengers. Some of the people in the vicinity and the hotelkeeper at Garrison say that they helped dress some of these people, but the supposition is that the majority of those who escaped with their lives and not their baggage were taken care of by the passengers in the sleepers that remained on the track and when taken to New York City were provided with clothes by the railroad people.

FORTUNATE BRIDAL COUPLE.

In the state room of this car were a bride and groom, who escaped with the others. Just to the rear of the Glen Alpine was the car Hermes, which in the plunge left its trucks and landed flat on its bottom in the river, but only in about three feet of water. The porter of this car, William Patterson, an intelligent and cool-headed man, tells the most graphic story of the wreck, and one which will probably be found to be the nearest lucid explanation of how so many sleeping people were miraculously saved from death.

A PORTER'S GRAPHIC NARRATION.

He related the story to Col. Ashley W. Cole, the president of the state railroad commission, who is making an investigation. He said:

"Just before the accident I was awakened from a doze by the slowing up of the train and I got up, thinking we were nearing Peekskill. I looked out of the window and just as I did so there came a crash and the leap of the car towards the river. I was thrown to the floor but, getting up in a moment, I seized a hammer and rushing outside broke all the windows on the shore side, and in a few minutes had gotten my twelve passengers out. I am positive every one got out, because there was only a foot or so of water in the car at that time. When all my passengers had gotten out we began to look out for the others. The car Hermes was just ahead of mine, and had plunged into deeper water, so that one end was completely submerged while the other was against the end of ours and a trifle higher. I saw the people climbing out of the high end and I am quite positive that before the car settled into deep water we got everybody out. Some of the people were scantily dressed. They hurried away to the other cars and I think they went to New York.

"After we had gotten out all the sleeping car passengers we saw some people from the combination car swimming in the river and we helped them to safety. I am afraid that, though some people were liberated from the other cars at night, they were drowned because of the cold water cramping them."

THE DEAD.

A revised list of the dead and injured is as follows:

Thomas Reilly, St. Louis, Mo.
W. H. G. Myers, Passaic, N. J.
E. A. Green, Chicago.
Guiseppe Paduano, New York.
W. S. Becker, New York.
Samuel Williams, Buffalo, N. Y.
A. G. McKay, private secretary to General Superintendent Van Etten.
John Foyle, engineer, East Albany.
John Q. Tompkins, fireman, East Albany.
Two unidentified women.
Wong Gim.
Hop Sing.
Six other Chinamen not identified.

THE INJURED.

E. O. Parrish, conductor, severely bruised.
Frank J. Degan, New York, body bruised and face cut.
Herman Acker, baggagemaster, Peekskill, bruised and head cut.
John Shaw, express agent, New York, slightly bruised.
John E. Ryan, 294 Barrow street, Jersey City, badly lacerated arm and legs, in hospital at Peekskill.
Clarence Morgan, of Aurora, N. Y., broken shoulder, in hospital at Peekskill.
W. S. Langford, of Bayonne, N. J., body bruised.
Charles Buchanan, of New York, laceration of hand and arm.
John Flood, laborer, of Lockport, N. Y., head and arm cut.
John Smith, American express messenger, injured internally.
Three Chinamen, badly cut and bruised, one identified as Quang Ding.

None of the injured are expected to die.

The bodies of McKay, Engineer Foyle and Fireman Tompkins have not yet been recovered.

The coronor's jury will meet on Tuesday night to conduct an investigation. In the meantime the railroad commissioners and officials of the New York Central railroad are also investigating into the cause of the disaster.

T. H. Parsons, who was thought to have perished in the railway disaster at Garrisons yesterday, is at his home in Brooklyn. He sustained some painful bruises, but was not seriously hurt. The injured from the wreck who were taken to the Flower hospital, in this city, are all doing well. There is no possibility that any of them will die from their hurts.

THE ENGINE LOCATED.

The engine was located by a diver this afternoon, but no bodies were discovered. The engine was about thirty feet from the shore in about sixty feet of water, and firmly imbedded in the mud. The cab was completely wrecked, and the tender had become separated from the engine.

A POSSIBLE CAUSE.

Colonel Cole said today that while the bank may have given way, it was equally possible that a driving rod of the engine had broken and, knocking it off the track, had occasioned the disaster. If there are any more bodies in the wreck or in

TALES OF DEATH.

No More Food Can Reach the Klondike This Winter.

Transportation Companies Have Abandoned Such Attempts—Mysterious Disease Breaks Out Among Miners.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 25.—Miners who came down on the steamer Farallon from Dyea and who left Dawson City about forty days ago, say five days before they left Hansen, one of the managers of the Alaska Commercial company, arrived in a canoe and told of the abandonment of efforts to get food up the river. Fully 400 miners at once made preparations to start out over the trails, but the citizens committee refused to allow them sufficient provisions for the journey, so to save those who had already started all will have to remain and share in the privations at Dawson City.

Charles Fries, of Tacoma, who came out with Butt Woods and Archie Burns, says that, besides the famine, a mysterious disease has broken out and is carrying off an average of five men daily. Twenty-four hours after the victim is attacked he turns black from the waist to the throat and two days later, in a majority of cases, is dead. On his way out over the Dalton trail, which, in many places, runs along the Yukon banks, the party met many boats bound down. About 300 boats are now going down the river with from three to seven men in each boat. The Fries party was the last to leave Dawson. At Five Finger Rapids they fell in with the party headed by Kay Stuart, of New York, which left six days before, and reaching Dalton's boat they caught up with the party composed of John Fry, F. L. and J. Trippe and C. Holden, of New York, with an Indian guide.

This party ran short of food, and for four days none had any food save an owl which they shot and some soup made from a rawhide strap which they were using in packing their goods.

The Faralon brought down about $20,000 in gold.

MAKES IT A REQUEST

Western Union Company Asked to Remove Poles.

No Trouble Looked For—Board of Works Discusses Improvements for Swinney Park.

The board of works has addressed a letter to Manager O. L. Perry, requesting the Western Union Telegraph company to supplant the overhead wires on Calhoun street with a conduit system. The request is made in view of the contemplated street improvements to be made in the spring, and it is supposed that the company will not hesitate to comply with it. The state law makes it possible for the city to issue an order and enforce it, but the authorities prefer to go at it in a fair and businesslike way and have the change made amicably. Manager Perry will refer the matter to the home office.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

The Central Union Telephone company and the Jonney Electric Light and Power company also have poles along Calhoun street. They have not been notified, but will be soon. The electric light company may decide to take their service off of a portion of Calhoun street if forced to put in underground wires, for in some squares they have only a few consumers.

SWINNEY PARK.

A number of substantial improvements will be made at the park next spring, among them a bicycle track. At a meeting of the board this afternoon the matter of having an artificial lake built was discussed and it is more than likely that such a lake will be built in accordance with plans submitted last year by John H. Lindroth, of Chicago.

TO AN ORANGE GROVE.

David D. Schlatter Will Move to California—Case Presentation.

David D. Schlatter, who for eleven years past has held a position in the hardware store of Pfeiffer & Schlatter, resigned his position last Saturday and will leave shortly for Los Angeles, Cal. His family will accompany him and they will make that their permanent home. Mr. Schlatter will have charge of an orange grove near Los Angeles. Last Saturday evening his associates in the store called upon him unexpectedly to bid him good bye and wish him all kinds of good luck. As a testimonial of their esteem they presented him with a handsome gold-headed cane, suitably inscribed.

CONSUMPTION CURE.

Dr. Hirscholder, of San Francisco, Has a New Remedy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—The claim of Dr. Joseph Hirscholder, of this city, that he has discovered a cure for consumption, announced last April, has been investigated by the faculty of the Cooper Medical college. Sixteen patients who have been treated with oxytuberculine, as the doctor calls his preparation, have been examined, and the report to be made this week will be favorable. Dr. L. C. Lane, president of the college, announces his faith in the discovery, which is in no sense a secret one, as the method of its preparation is freely given to the medical profession.

MILLIONS IN TRUST.

Executors Have the Will of the Late George M. Pullman.

Vast Estate in the Hands of Robert T. Lincoln and N. K. Ream—Widow Is Bequeathed Bulk of Wealth.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Five sheets of legal cap paper, covered on both sides with writing and representing a distribution of $25,000,000 in money, real estate, bonds, mortgages and notes, were confided to the care of Robert T. Lincoln and Norman B. Ream. The document was the last will and testament of George M. Pullman, the dead multimillionaire and palace car magnate. It was placed in a safe in the residence of Mr. Lincoln, at 60 Lake Shore drive, after the latter and Mr. Ream, in their capacity as executors, had received the record of Mr. Pullman's bequests into their keeping.

In accordance with the wishes of the Pullman family the will will be filed tomorrow or Wednesday. Rumors of possible complications resulting from the document in the arrangement of the estate are not credited by those who are familiar with the text of the will. Mr. Lincoln, after perusing the document, said that it was comparatively simple, considering the extensive interests involved. On account of the illness of Mr. Ream arrangements for placing the will within the jurisdiction of the court have fallen on Mr. Lincoln.

It is understood that the bulk of the estate will devolve upon Mrs. Pullman, the widow, to be held by her until her death, when it will revert to the children under certain conditions for the sons. Mrs. Florence Lowden, one of the daughters, and regarded as the favorite child, will be made one of the wealthiest women in Chicago. A considerable portion of the estate will also be inherited by her on the death of her mother. Mrs. Frank J. Carolan, the other daughter, comes in for nearly $1,000,000, but is not so liberally endowed as her sister.

George M. and W. Sanger Pullman, the twin brothers and only sons, will have to undergo the period of probation before they will be intrusted with any portion of the late millionaire's fortune. It is learned through a close friend of the family, who has seen the will, that neither of the boys will lack for liberal allowances. A number of shares of the Pullman Palace Car company and other business corporations in which their father was interested will be turned over to trustees, who will provide them with the funds due from time to time.

Three pages of the will are devoted to the sons. Mr. Pullman disposed of the portions of the estate which the daughters should receive in a few strokes of the pen. In order to keep the boys from being millionaires in their own right and at the same time arrange matters so that they should not be left without funds, Mr. Pullman found it necessary to devote the greater part of his will to limitations on the allowances of his sons.

Friends of the Pullman family estimate the income which is to revert to each of the sons at from $2,000 to $5,000 a year for five years. In the event of their living up to the provisions of the will they will then receive a large interest in the estate. Mrs. Pullman is empowered, it is understood, to distribute the section of the fortune which is hers by bequest. Specification is made, however, that the sons, in order to inherit their share, must secure the good will of the entire family during the probationary period.

HOT-BED FOR EDITORS.

Little Village of Lisbon Has Produced a Large Crop.

A writer in the Albion Democrat furnishes the following interesting information concerning the small but ancient hamlet of Lisbon, in Noble county: "We will venture to say that the little hamlet of Lisbon, in this county, has turned out more editors according to its population than any other village in the state of Indiana. They consist in the personage of W. W. Dowling, Lillie Sower, Miss Metta A. Dowling, of the Young Folks; H. E. Wadsworth, of the Laporte Argus; J. S. Conlogue, of the Kendallville Sun; Brook Bowman, of the Bremen Enquirer, and we might add W. K. Sheffer, of the Angola Herald, and Mrs. Chloe Parker, of the Kendallville News, that kind and noble woman, who now sleeps where the green sod marks her last resting place, and we drop a sprig of evergreen to her memory."

READY FOR IT.

Both Lavigne and Walcott in Fine Fettle For Their Go.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26.—Both Geo. Lavigne and Joe Walcott are down to weight and in fine fettle for their fight on next Friday night. Walcott has had no trouble in reducing to 135 pounds and is pronounced by the experts to be fit for the fight of his life.

Lavigne at present weighs 134 pounds and will let up in his work for the next few days. The men will weigh in at 6 o'clock on Friday evening and must be within 136 pounds. Walcott is a favorite in the betting at odds of 10 to 8 and 10 to 7.

The demand for seats for this fight is something unprecedented in local ring history. Many orders have been booked from Nevada and from Oregon and Arizona. Nearly every city in the state has applied for tickets.

"Denver Ed" Smith, who is manager of a hotel at Victoria, B. C., has written to a sporting man asking him to match him with Peter Jackson, the fight to take place in this city. If Smith is unable to get a go with Peter, he stands ready to meet the winner of the Goddard-Sharkey match.

MILLIONS.

Grace Elliott Talks of Her Prospective Wealth.

Has No Doubt of Receiving Dabney Clark's Great Riches—Will Marry an American and Be a Philanthropist.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Miss Grace Elliott, nee Clark, who claims to be the daughter of the late Imbay Clarke, alleged to have left a fortune of $25,000,000 is confident that she will have no trouble in proving her right to inherit this vast estate. When asked if she would fight the case to the end she said: "Why there is nothing to fight. The property is mine and I'll go to England and get the papers. That's all. I'll give something to those eastern girls who will have to pay their lawyers, Vice President Hobart and Mr. Griggs. I'll be liberal, because they are relations, you know. Then I'll come back, build a handsome residence and make my home here and I'll marry an American. No foreign title for me. I'm going to found a splendid home for friendless children and dedicate it to my father's memory. It is hard to realize I am so rich." And in this strain she continued to talk as though the somewhat visionary fortune was already in her hands.

A THRIFTY TRAMP.

He Coolly Steals a Railroad in Connecticut.

Sells Ties and a Depot at Ruinous Prices, and the Buyers Have Been "Sold."

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 25.—Farmers along the line of the abandoned Meriden, Waterbury and Connecticut River railroad have been victimized by a tramp under peculiar circumstances. He stopped at nearly every house along the road and told this story:

"My employer, Judge Robertson, sent me from his New Haven office to close up the affairs of the road. As the land through which the road runs reverts to the persons who owned it prior to the track being laid, Judge Robertson is disposing of all the passenger stations, pumping stations, tanks, railroad ties, &c.

"The judge is anxious to sell off these encumbrances as soon as possible, so that the land can be titled once more in all its verdant freshness."

The man "sold" over $1,000 worth of property to Herr Mischler for $2 on account, with railroad ties thrown in. At West Cheshire he offered to sell the depot for $100, dropped to $5, and accepted $3 from a confiding victim. In each case the tramp signed receipts for the money.

SOCIETY AT A BALL GAME.

Exhibition at Dayton, Ohio, Nets Over $5,000 for Charity.

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 25.—The greatest game of base ball, in point of attendance and gate receipts, ever seen in this part of the state was played here Saturday afternoon. It was a game for charity, the proceeds to go to the two hospitals of this city. The Dayton city club inaugurated the game, and society, business, and the professions helped it along. Ten thousand tickets were sold, some of the boxes selling for $50. The gate receipts were over $5,000. The score resulted in a tie of 10 to 10. The teams were made up of bankers, manufacturers, and millionaires. One nine was called the Tigers; the other the Kids. The game was funny, hilarious, and enthusiastic. The umpires carried revolvers and swords. The judges of the common pleas court umpired and a third judge played first base. Two bands of music enlivened the game. A German band serenaded every man who made an error. It was a rich and great success.

BETTER OUTLOOK.

Business in Canada Takes a Decided Advance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Consul General Turner, at Ottawa, in a report to the state department, says that Canada has been suffering from business depression but during the past few months a revival has set in. He adds: "The energies of the public men of Canada are at present directed toward fostering trade with England, on which it would seem, that the system of preferential duties lately adopted, and the denunciation of the favored nation treaties by England would have an apparent effect. The experiment has not so far been a decided success, as imports from England have fallen off. Canada buys more from the United States than from any other country."

Aged Colored Woman Dead.

SACRAMENTO, Cala., Oct 25.—Aunt Nancy Daniels, a colored woman, is dead here at the age of 110 years. She was a native of Virginia.

The committee which has in charge the production of "The New Woman" at Summit City hall in Novemuber, announce a rehearsal at the hall for this evening.

ANTHONY GOCKE.

A Fort Wayne Pioneer Goes to His Long Rest.

He Lived Here Nearly Half a Century—Death of Phillip Nestel—Other Deaths and Funerals.

After years of suffering, Anthony Gocke passed away peacefully at the home of his daughter, Mrs. G. B. Grimme, his death occurring at half past 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Gocke was very popular, having many friends and acquaintances all over the northern part of the state and northwestern Ohio, and was esteemed by all who knew him. He was a noble and generous man and a kind father. One of his strong traits and which, no doubt, won him many substantial friends, was his promptness. He was prompt in everything. Mr. Gocke was born near Paterborn, West Phalia, Germany, on November 3, 1815; he emigrated to this country in 1850, landing in New Orleans after a voyage of twelve weeks. His destination being Fort Wayne, he took a boat for Vincennes, at which place he landed. He was forced to remain there until the next spring as navigation had closed. In the spring of 1851 he took a boat for Logansport, expecting his brother to meet him there. However, upon arrival, he took a packet on the old Wabash and Erie canal for Fort Wayne. When he arrived here he learned that his brother had gone to Logansport to meet him, having gone on horse back. This was in the days before railroading. For several months he lived with his brother, the late Francis Gocke, then accepted a position with Gerhard Rekers, who conducted a general store; later he resigned and accepted a position with the late Bernard Trentman and remained with the Trentman grocery for nearly one-third of a century, retiring fifteen years ago. When Mr. Gocke was quite young he fractured his limb, which was the immediate cause of his death, he remained conscious to the last and looked forward to the end. Mr. Gocke was one of the founders of the St. Paul's Catholic church, at which place the funeral will occur at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Forty-two years ago Mr. Gocke was married to Miss Elizabeth Rensman, who died nearly twenty-three years ago. Six children survive him, Frank A., of Dayton, Ohio; Henry J., of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. G. B. Grimme, Louis H., August C., and Clara J., of this city. The pall bearers are Gerhard Rekers, M. Gruber, J. Alter, sr., P. Pierre, A. Buchheit and William Brossard. His first employer in this country, Mr. Gerhard Rekers, will be one of his pall bearers.

GLAD TO GET BACK.

The Vaughn and Trimble Families Return From the Western Country.

Two dilapidated prairie schooners, drawn by worn-out horses, arrived in the city this morning, having come all the way from Kansas in three weeks' time. The occupants of the wagons were H. Vaughn and Henry Trimble, with their families. Mr. Vaughn said that he and his wife left Fort Wayne in a wagon bound for Kansas in 1873, and had located and since lived in Butler county, of that state. Not being successful in the west after all these years, they decided to move back. They left Butler county three weeks ago and had been on the go constantly. Mr Vaughn said that the crops in Kansas were nearly all ruined on account of the dry weather. He said that he had seen better corn in Indiana than in any state they had passed through. Mr. Trimble and his family formerly lived in Paulding county, and they left for their old home.

BRICK HIT HIM.

Close Call for Charles Meyers at the Elektron.

Dr. Proegler and Family in a Runaway Accident—Dr. Sledd Injured—The Chapter of Accidents.

Charles A. Meyers, a workman at the Elektron building, had a close call this morning, and although he escaped death he received injuries that will trouble him for some time to come. Mr. Meyers was working on the first floor when a brick fell from the fourth story, striking him a glancing blow on the head and inflicting two ugly gashes. If the missile had struck him squarely on the head his skull would have been fractured and caused his death.

DR. PROEGLER INJURED.

Dr. Carl Proegler, who has been ill several weeks, felt so much better yesterday that he went out driving, his wife and baby, accompanying him. While driving out Washington boulevard toward Swinney park, the horse was frightened by the antics of a stubborn pony, which threw a boy from its back directly in front of the doctor's horse. The animal started to run away, swerving to the right into the yard of W. E. Mossman, where the vehicle was overturned and the occupants thrown out. Mrs. Proegler and the child escaped with a few slight bruises, but the doctor strained the muscles of his side, making him almost helpless. The runaway broke away from the carriage and ran several blocks before caught. The vehicle was badly wrecked.

NEARLY CHOKED TO DEATH.

Miss Clara Zimmerman, daughter of the East Main street druggist, nearly choked to death as a result of a piece of apple becoming lodged in her throat last Saturday evening. She could not remove the obstruction and she went into spasms. A physician was sent for and the apple was removed after some difficulty.

BROKE THREE RIBS.

Dr. S. D. Sledd, while throwing hay from a loft in his barn on West DeWald street, fell through the chute into the manger below. Three ribs were fractured and he was badly bruised. Dr. Sledd is connected with the Schell Loan and Investment company.

ELBOW DISLOCATED.

A little son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Hudgell, of West Jefferson street, fell from a tree while hickory-nutting, and suffered a dislocation of his elbow.

GOT THERE AT LAST.

Dora Plowman, After a Checkered Career, is Sent Up.

She and An Accomplice, James Early, Found Guilty of Horse Stealing—Formerly Lived Here.

Dora Plowman, along with a male accomplice, James Early, has just been sentenced to three years at Carlinville, Ill., for horse stealing. Early and the woman with whom he had been traveling were arrested at Carlinville, June 17 last. The case came up last week, when both were speedily tried and convicted. It came out in the trial that Dora was a professional horse thief and it was shown that the pair had carried on extensive business in this line.

Dora formerly made Fort Wayne her stamping ground. She stole a horse and buggy from Fletcher's livery barn about a year ago, driving through to Roanoke, where the outfit was identified by a livery man as Fletcher's but before he could cause the female's arrest she had skipped out. She has figured frequently in the Fort Wayne police court.

JUVENILE VANDALS.

They Throw Stones Into a Passenger Train.

Lads Are Arrested and Taken Before the Mayor, Who Lectures Them—Notes in Police Circles.

Raymond Riley, aged eleven, and his brother, Phineas, aged nine, were before the mayor this morning to receive punishment for throwing stones through the window of a passenger train on the Pittsburg railroad, at the Broadway crossing. The lads were caught in the act. For some time complaints have reached the authorities of this vicious practice and the officers have been on the alert. The boys are the sons of Edward Riley, the well known canvasser the boys were reprimanded and released.

NOTES.

Charles Glass, arrested by Officer Hobbs on the charge of drunkenness, was let go.

Three tramp jumpers were let go.

THE difference between Crokerism and Plattism is a difference only of terms. They mean all that is vicious in politics.

NEXT Friday is Arbor day. THE SENTINEL wishes to repeat its recent suggestion that the day be generally observed in Fort Wayne.

GREAT BRITAIN'S rejection of the administration's silver overtures was foretold from ten thousand democratic stumps a year ago.

TWO better things couldn't happen the same day than the election of Seth Low in New York and the defeat of Mark Hanna in Ohio.

POLICY is bad. But that is worse policy which seeks to pursue policy with policy. This statement may be a trifle involved, but we believe Mayor Scherer can unravel it if he will try.

SEE that hump? That's what wheat's been doing for a day or two and Mark Hanna will point to it as an added reason why he should be elected to the United States senate.

HENRY GEORGE promises as plainly as a promise can be made that if the people of New York give him the power he will find out by what means Boss Croker became wealthy. There is a consideration that certainly is worth while.

NO ONE, we hope, will borrow offense if it is suggested that the streets and alleys, in short, the city generally, be given a thorough cleaning; a good, smart scouring before corner stone day. Let us look our prettiest for the thousands who will be our honored guests on that occasion.

WITH no desire to be impertment THE SENTINEL confesses a curiosity to know whether the convicted policy gambler for whom the police court docket has been stayed three months is to have immunity to earn the amount of his fine at the same old job. The way to wipe out policy is to wipe it out. See?

THE next assessment will be made under the new dog law, which provides that diligent inquiry shall be made as to the number of dogs owned or harbored by the persons assessed, and that said persons shall pay immediately to the township assessor one dollar for each male dog and two dollars for each additional male dog or spayed female dog, and three dollars for each female dog owned. The assessor to give each person a receipt for the money paid him. Many of the provisions of the law are very exacting.

SETH LOW has been developing surprising strength during the past week and his friends are more hopeful than ever of his triumph. The election in New York will be held one week from tomorrow and it begins to look as though there would be a stampede to Low by the time of voting. Platt's man is hopelessly in the rear and Henry George is daily making inroads on Tammany. If Croker and Platt shall be swept away by the same avalanche, the greatest victory yet achieved for good government will be the splendid fruits.

New Public Library Building.

Most timely, indeed, is the suggestion of Comptroller Berghoff that the city of Fort Wayne acquire ownership of the Y. M. C. A. building and convert it into a home for the public library. There are numerous reasons which give force to Mr. Berghoff's suggestion. Chief among these are that the building can be purchased for many thousands of dollars less than would be necessary to procure an eligible site and erect so good a building, and that at a comparatively small outlay the Y. M. C. A. building may be so remodeled as to constitute admirably adapted quarters for the public library.

The present quarters of the library in addition to being wholly inadequate are singularly ill adapted for their purpose. The Y. M. C. A. building would make a fine library home and its location is better than any other the city may hope to secure.

Mr. Berghoff's suggestion deserves and will, we hope, receive prompt and serious attention.

The Man for Commissioner.

It is understood that there are a number of candidates for the county commissionership that will be made vacant at the expiration of Commissioner Stellhorn's term, owing to the death of John Orff, who had been elected to succeed him.

The new commissioner must come from the district in which Fort Wayne is situated. Because of the building of the new court house he should be one of our very strongest men. He should be a man whose very name will stand for honesty in the community. More than half a million dollars are to be expended on the new building and there may be temptations to betray the tax-payers of the county. The man chosen to fill the impending vacancy should be a citizen whose character will be an added guarantee that the new building will be erected with absolute honesty, with faithful adherence to every requirements of the contract.

That the commissioners will be made the object of partisan attack is most probable there are those who for political ends may be willing to forget the duty they owe the welfare and progress of the city and county and their obligations as citizens to hold the good name of the community in the highest respect. Let this sort of warfare be circumvented at the very outset by giving to the board of commissioners in the person of its every member such character for honesty and faithfulness as will itself be a firm refutation of any charges of betrayal of the people and put to shame all covert hints of jobbery.

Therefore, THE SENTINEL as a democratic newspaper and the advocate of absolute honesty in office would urge exercise of the utmost care, of the highest judgment, of consideration single to the public good in the choice of a man for appointment to this place which is fraught with greater responsibilities than have ever rested upon it heretofore.

Mr. George and Mr. Croker.

Henry George's candidacy for the mayoralty of Greater New York evidently means something. At its inception it meant war on Tammany. Now it seems to mean war in particular on the man who rules Tammany. From the New York Sun's report of a speech delivered by Henry George one night last week the following extract is taken:

If Mr. Croker has honestly come by his horses and hounds, with which he amuses himself on the other side of the water, let him remain here.

If this is not true, if these were got by the robbing of the people, let him go to England by the very next steamer. If I have power—[and Mr. George's voice rang out]—the penitentiary yawns for him. If I have power the fate of Tweed and the fate of McKane will be his, for, as I believe it, a great crime has been done. If the people come to their own, a crime must be punished as a crime, and if I am elected and have the power, the people who have committed these crimes must flee away.

That's the sort of talk to arouse the enthusiasm of honest folk. Not only prevent rascals from again plundering the public but punish them for the plundering they have already done. Croker is rich. He never had an income from any source that the public was aware of. "Where did he get it?" is a query that has become a joke. Where, indeed! Where, no doubt, he hopes to get more.

Two honest, fearless, independent men are candidates for mayor of New York. Either will put a quietus on Crokerism and Plattism. Either will make Dick Croker answer how and where. If Low shall be defeated then may George win.

Too Many Divorces.

The divorce docket of the courts is giving the marriage register a race for first honors. This observation is not applicable to Allen county alone; it is true of the state generally. During the past three months there has been a veritable epidemic of marital dissatisfaction and the froth has come to the surface in the divorce courts. In a majority of cases the complainants are women with husbands whose intemperance has wrecked the happiness of the home. It has always been so; perhaps always will be. And this raises anew the question if there be not some better remedy than the divorce for protecting wives and children from the brutalities of intemperate husbands and fathers. The whipping-post for wife beaters is frequently suggested, and while it may be called a revival of barbarism, there is no denying that it would in many if not most cases be salutary. So eminent a divine as Bishop Potter lately declared himself in favor of the whipping-post and the pillory, and he does not stand alone among eminent men as an advocate of such form of correction for wife-beaters. It has been widely noticed that wife-beating is markedly on the increase in almost every community, especially in larger towns and cities. An examination of such of these cases as get into the police courts and the divorce courts discloses that the intemperance of husbands lies as the bottom cause. So with much force is presented the question if there may not be a better remedy than the wholesale sundering of the marriage tie—than the destruction of the home.

WORD CONTEST.

One Hundred Dollars in Cash to be Given Away.

Something to Entertain, Interest and Please the Young, the Old and the Middle Aged

As the winter evenings are drawing nigh, when the young and old folks will have plenty of time for thought and work, we have discovered a little plan for their entertainment and amusement which will handsomely compensate them for the time and pains they may devote to it. We want to know how many words can be made from the letters,

THE FORT WAYNE SENTINEL.

Use each letter as desired, but not more times than it appears in "THE FORT WAYNE SENTINEL." Verbs, pronouns, adjectives, nouns, adverbs, plurals allowed. Words spelled alike, but having different meanings, count as one word. Use any standard dictionary. All legitimate English words count. Proper nouns, prefixes, suffixes, obsolete and foreign words do not count. Work it out as follows: Tar, tray, hat, her, eat, eel, fail, first, etc., etc.

To the person making the largest list of words from the twenty letters found in THE FORT WAYNE SENTINEL we will pay $50; to the second, $25; to the third, $15; to the fourth, $10.

The words must be written on one side of the sheet and numbered and sent to this office addressed to

WORD EDITOR.

Not later than December 23, 1897, as the contest closes on the evening of that date. Begin now, but do not send in lists till near the close of the contest, as it is desired that all who engage in this competition shall strive earnestly to win the prize.

This is open to every man, woman and child in Fort Wayne, and Allen county and every county adjoining Allen. No other conditions are imposed: it makes no difference whether you are a subscriber to THE SENTINEL or not. All are eligible to enter the contest. Tell your neighbors and friends about it.

NORTHERN INDIANA NOTES.

The streets of Ashley are now lighted by electricity. An incandescent plant will also be started there next week.

A. D. Caswell, of Fremont, Ind., has twenty tons of dried apples in cold storage in New York city and expects to receive a good sized price.

A badger, weighing twenty pounds, was killed on Main street in Laporte last week. How the animal ever got in that locality is not known. Old hunters agreed on the identity of the animal.

Daniel Green, of South Bend, informs the Times that fifty-seven years ago last Wednesday the snow was thirty-eight inches deep in northern Indiana. He remembers the great storm well and says it lasted three days.

The Auburn Courier says John Weimer, a farmer of DeKalb county, is the leading potato grower of that section. He had twenty-eight acres planted in potatoes this year and his crop aggregated 2,500 bushels. He sold 455 bushels of early potatoes at eighty-five cents and is selling the late ones from his cellar at sixty cents per bushel. He invested $19.50 in Paris green and London purple and spent twenty-two days trudging back and forth in his potato fields carrying a knap sack sprayer on his back and killed millions of bugs. Most of this work was done when the thermometer stood at 100 in the shade. He realized about $50 gross per acre on the crop.

RAINS CAUSE LOSS.

Heavy Damage Reported from the Northern Part of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Reports from the interior show that the heavy rains which fell this week all over the northern part of the state have caused immense loss to farmers and vineyards and will in all probability put an end to the shipment of grapes to the east. The total loss exceeds $1,000,000. In Fresno county alone it is estimated that the storms caused a loss of at least $600,000 to the raisin crop. Almost a quarter of the crop is lost.

Go to G. Schmidt's, 70 E. Main street, for your fall suit. New patterns now in. Fit guaranteed. 3tf

WISE ADVICE TO HUSBANDS.

Those Who Have Ailing Wives Will do Well to Accept It.

Do not wrangle and quarrel, and finally rush into the courts and try to get a separation from your faithful wife; but just stop a moment and think! Your wife, who was even-tempered and amiable, and all that was lovely when you married her, has changed. Now she is peevish, irritable, jealous, discontented and miserable—in a word, she has uterine disorder of some kind.

Law is not the remedy for this condition, she needs medical treatment, her uterine system is at fault.

My advice to you is, sit down and write a letter to that friend of women, Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., state fully and freely the whole case to her and she will honestly advise you what to do. Give your wife that chance, good man!

If you do not wish to write about your wife, bring her a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, watch its effects, you will soon see the beginning of the improvement; then get her another and keep it up until she is restored to you, the same lovely woman you married years ago.

Following we relate the circumstances of a case of this nature. Mrs. MELVA ROUTON, of Camby, Ind., says:

"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it to be of great benefit to me. The doctors said I had womb trouble. I had the headache all the time, also a terrible backache, was nervous, cross and irritable. I looked so pale that people would ask me what was the matter. I suffered in this way for about four years, until one day about in despair my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I commenced its use, and much to every one's surprise, it cured me. It has completely changed my disposition for the better also. Several of my neighbors, knowing what the Pinkham medicine has done for me, are taking it, and are much pleased with the result."

Memory of Sleepwalkers.

The memory of sleepwalkers is occasionally prodigious under the influence of the dominating impulse that moves them. There is an instance of a poor and illiterate basket maker, who was unable to read or write, yet in a state of sleep he would preach finent sermons, which were afterward recognized as having formed portions of discourses he was accustomed to hear in the parish church as a child more than 40 years before. Quite as strange a case of "unconscious memory" is referred to by Dr. Abercrombie. A girl given to sleepwalking was in the habit of imitating the violin with her lips, giving the preliminary tuning and scraping and flourishing with the utmost fidelity. It puzzled the physician a good deal, until he ascertained that when a child she lived in a room adjoining a fiddler who often performed on his violin in her hearing.—Pearson's Weekly.

WON HIS DISCHARGE.

A Soldier Who Very Cleverly Worked the Monomania Dodge.

A soldier belonging to one of the Idaho infantry companies worked the monomania dodge cleverly enough a few years ago and got his discharge from the service as an incapable unfit for military duty. Before entering the service he had been a telegraph lineman, and when he came to the conclusion that he had had enough of the service he developed an uncontrollable mania for climbing to the top of the flagpole on the post parade ground. He secured a pair of lineman's climbers. One evening at dress parade he had been excused on account of illness. When the soldiers were passing in review before the commanding officer at this evening function the lineman was seen to rush across the parade ground in the direction of the flagpole, and in a jiffy he had scaled it to the very top. He paid no attention to the commands that were bawled at him to "come down out o' that," but pulled a small pair of fieldglasses from his blouse and began to survey the horizon. He gave no ear even to the commanding officer's demand that he descend instantly or get shot, nor did he as much as look below when he heard the command given to three members of the guard, "Aim—ready"—Of course, the command "Fire!" was not given. The bluff did not work. The soldier stuck to his perch at the top of the staff and continued his ranging of the horizon with the fieldglasses. The officers of the post were in a quandary, and they were considering the advisability of sawing the flagpole down when the soldier at the top of it climbed down.

"I didn't see any," he said as he was being seized.

"See any what?"

"Indians."

"Is that what you went up there for?" his captain asked him.

"Yes, sir. The Shoshones are about to attack the post."

He was taken to the guardhouse and the post surgeon sent for. The surgeon found the soldier perfectly quiet and rational. He talked as sanely as any man could on general subjects, but he seemed firmly persuaded that it was his special business in the service to watch out for Indians from the top of the flagpole. When he was released, he went directly to his quarters, fastened on his climbers without being observed and made such good time across the parade ground that he had almost attained the top of the flagpole before the pursuers reached the base. This time he remained at the top of the pole for several hours, paying no heed at all to anything that went on below. He was so busily engaged in examining the distant plains with his fieldglasses that he did not even see the soldiers rigging up a net at the foot of the flagpole. He was considerably surprised and grieved when he was jerked into the net by means of a lasso unerringly thrown by a soldier who had been a cowboy. He was out of the service within just the space of time that it required for a reply from the war department to an official letter concerning his condition sent from the post. The members of the guard who escorted the monomaniac to the gate upon his discharge said afterward that there was a broad grin on the ex-lineman's face as they led him out.

"Well, how about the Indians now?" asked one of the guard just as the man was about to be turned loose at the gate.

"Indians be d——d," said the ex-monomaniac, displaying his wad of back pay and allowance bank notes and his discharge. "Are you all jays!"—New York Sun.

A Mechanical Emperor.

To judge from the following anecdote, Emperor Menelek of Abyssinia has a mechanical turn of mind not usually supposed to belong to the natives of the dark continent. It seems that M. Lagarde, the French minister to that country, having heard that the empress desired to possess a sewing machine, took pains to have one included among his baggage, but the roads of Abyssinia are capable of much improvement, and, although the machine was well packed, the accidents of the trip left it at the end in a sorry condition. When the case was opened, M. Lagarde found, to his chagrin, that the machine positively refused to work. Not being versed in the methods of making repairs of this sort, he was at a loss what to do, when Menelek approached. "Let me look at it," he said. He scrutinized the machine, examined its plan of construction and, catching sight of a little spring which had become bent, remarked, "Why, you have only to straighten that out, and the machine will work." No sooner said than done. With a sharp blow from a hammer the negus put matters to rights, and the next minute the machine was running admirably, to the intense delight of the empress and the natural amazement of M. Lagarde.

TOO TRUE TO LIFE.

Why Verestchagin's War Pictures Displeased the Russian Government.

At this late day the Swedish academy has decided that Vasili Verestchagin has done more for the good of man in art than any other living painter. The basis on which this decision is made is that his purpose in his pictures is to reform men by showing in art the horror and reality of their evil deeds. If this is true, and many acknowledged it to be so long before the Swedish academicians found it out, then we Americans are most benefited by the genius of this great Russian, for it was in this country that the Verestchagin gallery was put under the hammer, and here most of his masterpieces still remain.

Verestchagin has been in retirement for more than five years now and little has been heard of him. After exhibiting his great collection of paintings all over Europe he brought them to America about 1890. The collection was exhibited in most of the large cities of the Union, and then it was suddenly announced that the great artist had decided to sell them. He was broken in health and poor in purse, and he had become tired of traveling about and dodging reporters. The sale was a disappointment, for the pictures did not bring one-third their value, the whole amount being less than $80,000.

Verestchagin was born about 55 years ago in the province of Novgorod, Russia. As a boy he sketched everything he saw, and, much to the chagrin of his father, insisted on going to St. Petersburg to study art. He staid there two years and then went to Paris, where he became a student under Gerome. In Paris he was chief-distinguished for carrying a pistol and refusing to copy the old masters.

He accompanied a Russian military expedition into central Asia and saw with his own eyes what war really was. Incidentally he fought like a hero and was badly wounded. Later he accompanied Skobeloff and saw more war.

Then he went back to Russia, established an open air studio and painted what he had seen with indiscreet frankness. He put on canvas the hideousness of war. He left out the pomp, the feathers and the gold braid of the parade ground and painted the wholesale manslaughter of the battlefield. The pictures are not pleasant to look upon, but they make you think. They made the Russian officials swear. They were too true. So Verestchagin went into exile, taking his pictures with him, and he has kept out of Russia ever since.

WEYLER'S SUCCESSOR.

General Blanco Is Not Exactly an Angel of Mercy.

The Spanish government has declared that its future policy in dealing with its rebellious colonists is to be merciful. People who know the past record of the man selected to succeed Weyler, "the butcher," will accept this statement only with some mental reservation. Captain General Blanco will be filling an unaccustomed rolo if he goes to Cuba as an agent of mercy.

CAPTAIN GENERAL BLANCO.

General Blanco has been in Cuba before, and his second visit does not throw the insurgents into ecstasies of delight. He succeeded General Campos in the governorship of the island early in 1879, and he held the post until 1881. During this period the second insurrection, known as the "little war," raged. By Blanco's instructions, carried out by the infamous Polavieja, now governor general of the Philippines, fully 1,500 men were put to death without even the shadow of a trial. He is remembered also as the man who refused to recognize the terms of surrender agreed to by his lieutenant, General Valera, and who transported General Callixto Garcia and his officers after they had been assured that if they would lay down their arms they would not be molested.

Blanco was captain general of the Philippine Islands from 1894 up to December, 1896, when the religious societies in those islands caused him to be superseded by General Polavieja. He was charged with weakness, incompetency and leniency toward the natives, and not long ago he denied, in a long article which he gave to the press, any such conduct.

It is understood that Captain General Blanco does not go to Cuba with free hands, but that he will act there in strict compliance with instructions that he is to receive from the cabinet. He promises, however, to act with great energy against the insurgents and to establish peace by the same methods with which he was so successful in 1879. It is said by some persons who claim to have seen him lately, however, that the energy which he has at his disposal is small, for he is alleged to be a wreck physically and mentally. He is nearly 70 years old.

No Such Firm.

A writer in a recent number of The Strand Magazine gives currency to the following postoffice anecdote: Mr. F. Litchfield, the well known art dealer, exhibited some panels of old tapestry at the Manchester Jubilee exhibition. Wanting one of these returned, he wired: "Please send panel 8 by 10, 'Venus and Adonis.'—Litchfield." The departmental head of the exhibition was away, and his clerk returned the message to the postoffice as "not understandable." The postoffice people, struck with a bright idea, then transmitted the telegram to the city of Litchfield and received the following reply: "No such firm as Venus & Adonis known here. Try Manchester."

TRACK INSPECTION.

Pennsylvania Officials About to Start Out.

A Device for Stopping Trains and Street Cars—A New Version of the Eel River Receivership Matter—Gossip.

Tomorrow morning General Manager L. F. Loree, of the Pennsylvania, will leave Pittsburg, accompanied by all the officials of the maintenance of way department, including road supervisors, on the annual track inspection of the entire northwestern system. There will be about 110 persons in the party and they will travel by two special trains, one of which will have attached the track indicator car that was described minutely in these columns a short time ago. The party will probably reach this city Wednesday evening. Chief Engineer Thomas Rodd and J. F. Miller, general superintendent of the southwestern system, will accompany the inspection party.

A NEW SAFETY DEVICE.

Consul Morris, at Ghent, Belgium, reports to the state department at Washington, a new invention recently tried on the state railway of France and which is intended to check and stop trains. The device is operated from the station and when placed 250 yards away will stop the train before it reaches the station. It is fastened to the rails and when in operation catches a lever hanging from the passing locomotive which causes an air valve to open and puts the brakes immediately in action. In connection with this device is another which connects the grade crossing gates with it in such a manner that the gates cannot be opened without the brake from the track is in operation.

ABOUT THE EEL RIVER CONTROVERSY.

The Toledo Bee says: "The fact that the Wabash has consented to the appointment of a receiver for the Eel River road, which has been leased and operated by the Wabash for the past ten years, is the subject of considerable speculation in railroad circles. The Eel River extends from Logansport to Butler, Ind. The Wabash owns the line from Butler to Detroit and from Montpelier, O., to Chicago. A surrender of the lease of the Eel River would therefore not affect the Chicago line of the Wabash in the least. In conversation with a Wabash official a Bee representative was informed that the Eel River division has been costing the former road in the neighborhood of $50,000 per year in the way of interest charges. Whether or not it is the desire of the Wabash to get rid of this expense and construct its own connecting link cannot be guessed to a certainty, but it is believed in some quarters that this is what the Wabash is aiming at. A short link between Toledo and Montpelier would give a direct line from this city to Chicago, and the only thing that seems to stand in the way of such a scheme is the fact that the company would then be compelled to establish its own terminal facilities here, as the road would come in direct competition with the Lake Shore, and would, therefore, not be allowed the use of the union depot."

EAST-BOUND SHIPMENTS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—East bound freight shipments for the week ending October 14 amounted to 60,949 tons, against 67,135 the previous week, and 80,762 the previous year, divided among the roads as follows: Pan Handle, 8,338 tons; Michigan Central, 5,134; Wabash, 7,307; Lake Shore, 8,052; Fort Wayne, 6,134; Baltimore and Ohio, 2,830; Grand Trunk, 7,096; Nickel Plate, 4,767; Erie, 7,662; Big Four, 3,732. The lake lines carried 176,667 tons.

BRIEF MENTIONS.

Machinist Fred Rops has taken a position in the Wabash shops.

F. P. Wicliffe, a car builder employed at the east car shops, is on the sick list.

C. A. Tyler, freight conductor on the Pittsburg, is lying very low at 136 Shawnee avenue.

Machinist D. J. DeVilbiss, of the Wabash shops, visited his mother at Montpelier, Ohio, yesterday.

Joseph Carry, the veteran blacksmith in the Pittsburg shops, is taking a day off to have a little fun with the festive stove pipe. He is moving into the house at 186 Montgomery street.

George Henderson, of Lagrange, Ind., is visiting some relatives and friends in the city.

The Pittsburg shops this morning turned out engine 529 and took in for repairs engine 102.

Al Mercer and Peter Hohnhausen, blacksmiths, are on the sick list. Both work at the Bass shops.

Since the 1st of October the Wabash has hauled from Peru, Ind., oil wells 240 tank cars of oil, or 40,000 barrels.

J. L. Miller, the boilermaker who had a hand badly cut a week ago, resumed work in the Pittsburg shops this morning.

C. Roesner, a Pittsburg car inspector, has gone to Upper Sandusky, Ohio, to take the place of an inspector who is sick.

J. C. Gehring, foreman of the machine department of the Wabash shops, was the guest of friends at Butler, Ind., yesterday.

It is stated that there is no possibility of the holdings of the late George M. Pullman in the Pullman stock company being sold.

William Schaefer and Julius Henry, of the Pittsburg shops, are absent from their places this morning on account of sickness.

Supt. G. L. Potter returned home this morning to make preparations for accompanying the inspection party over the lines this week.

William Hille, the operator of a drill press at the Bass works, has recovered from an illness which kept him from his work about a week.

The Toledo Bee has the following to say of a man well known here: "Engineer Tom Bloomfield has left the Ann Arbor and will go to work for the Wabash."

John Rupp, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, is preparing to have his residence remodeled and improved and is taking a lay off to get the work under way.

J. J. Simms, trainmaster of the Chicago-Detroit division of the Wabash road, with headquarters at Ashley, spent a few hours in the city this morning.

Albert Heider, a brickmason, has taken a position in the Pittsburg shops. His duties will be to keep the furnaces in the blacksmith department in order.

Will Conover, clerk at the S. F. Bowser & Company oil tank works, will tomorrow move his family into a pleasant house on Madison street, near Harmer street.

E. B. Babcock, who during the dull season had been working as a car repairer in the Nickel Plate yards, has returned to his old position in the Pittsburg shops.

The fog this morning was the cause of delay in the arrival of several of the passenger trains on the roads running into this city. No accidents have been reported.

Louis Altevogt resumed his duties in the Bass machine shop this morning. The reader will remember that Mr. Altevogt suffered a paralytic stroke a short time ago. He has fully recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Dailey were the guests of friends at Wabash over Sunday. Mr. Dailey made the trip to and from that city on his bicycle. He left Wabash at 2 o'clock this morning and reached this city in time to report for work. He is clerk in the car department.

General Manager James Ramsey spent a few hours in the city this morning and was shown through the shops and about the company's grounds by Master Mechanic C. H. Doobler. Mr. Ramsey was en route home from the east and came in this morning on the Pittsburg road and left over the Wabash. He traveled in his private car.

Richard Puff, who has filled the office of clerk for Foreman Joseph Slater, at the Bass blacksmith shop, for two or three years, has gone to Ashley to take a position as fireman on the Wabash road. The position in the smith shop office has been taken by William C. Slater, a son of the foreman, who recently returned from Stony Island, where he was staying with his brother, Dr. Geo. Slater.

Tomorrow the "Carnival of Fun" will open at Grand Rapids and the railroads leading into that city have made a half fare rate. The Grand Rapids and Indiana road expects to carry several thousand people into the town.

It is stated that the Wabash is having an engine built weighing 120 tons, forty tons more than any locomotive now in service on the road.

The new interchangeable mileage in Western Passenger association territory will not be placed on sale Nov. 1, the time having been postponed to Nov. 15.

A special train on the Erie road bearing President Thomas, Vice President Morrill and other officials of the road did some very fast running Friday, covering the 122 miles between Huntington, Ind., and Hammond, Ind., in 117 minutes.

All the Indiana railroads will make a cheap rate to Evansville November 4th and 7th inclusive, tickets good returning up to and including the 8th. The occasion this rate is the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Indiana Young Men's Christian association.

The meeting of the Wabash railroad surgeons will be held at St. Louis on November 11. Drs. Miles F. Porter, C. B. Stemen and W. H. Myers will be the Fort Wayne representatives. This organization was the first of its kind ever organized in this country, many others since springing into existence.

Among the relatives from abroad who attended the funeral yesterday of the late Mrs. Julius Tonne was Fred Kreckman, of Toledo, a brother of the deceased. Mr. Kreckman is an old Fort Wayne boy, leaving here twenty-two years ago for Toledo. He is engaged in the painting business in that city.

George Killen has so far recovered as to be able to walk about the streets and thus spent an hour yesterday. Three or four weeks ago it was believed that this man was going to die from hydrophobia, but he is now in a fair way to recover complete health. Mr. Killen is a blacksmith and when able to work is employed in the Pittsburg shops.

The Evansville and Terre Haute has an echo of the flood of last spring, in which the wreck at Hazelton occurred. Mrs. Hanna Sullivan has brought suit against the company for $4,000. She claims that her land, which was once fertile, has been made a barren waste by the rush of waters, which deposited millions upon millions of feet of sand upon it.

Car ferry barges will probably begin to run between Sandusky, Ohio, and Detroit, Mich., tomorrow. The barges are now ready. Three tracks have been fitted on them, and their bows fitted to the slips to which they are to run. Each has a capacity of from nine to eleven cars. It will take probably ten hours to make the run between the two towns, or a day for a round trip.

The section hands all along the line of the Wabash railroad are now engaged in putting the track and roadbed in prime condition for the year. The rails are being straightened by taking out the kinks, the ties are being made solid and firm by extra tamping. Some time next month this work will be inspected by the magnates of the road and the section showing the best work and the cleanest roadway will be awarded a prize from the company.

John C. Noyes, for many years a western railroad man, was buried in Newburyport, Mass., on Thursday. In the sixties Mr. Noyes was general freight agent of the Indianapolis and St. Louis; in 1875 he accepted a similar position on the Vandalia, and two years later returned to the Indianapolis and St. Louis. In the late eighties he was appointed general manager of the Merchants' Despatch and held that position until 1894, when he retired on account of ill health.

FALL TIME FANCIES.

THE DYING YEAR CELEBRATED IN PROSE AND VERSE.

The Autumn Forests That Put to Shame the Weird Grandeur of a Pay Day Dream Painted With Circus Lemonade—Rare Pathos In the Falling Leaf.

And now the leaflet assumes the fragile curl of the breakfast bacon when it lies down with the liver of the youthful immature beeve. The forest is one grand, undulating pavilion of throbbing color that puts to shame the weird grandeur of a pay day dream painted with circus lemonade. The corn has vanished from the cob, much to the delight of the man who dreams fondly of his front teeth that are no more and has taken up its abode in the can, the home of the salmon. The popcorn is popping over the ruddy blaze, and the sear and yellow dog is a barking symbol in color of the wistful, dreamy season whose hazy fields stretch far away and keep on stretching without a break, suffused with the glory of the dying day, and the bonfire in which the small boy cooks sweet potatoes in the ruddy flames of the old shoes and rubber boots which he has gathered in the bosom of the ancient gurret. The partridge plays his drum solo on the fallen tree, and later becomes a silent symphony when he lies upon the dish, daintily filigreed and arabesqued with water cress.

Now the terra cotta squirrel
Skips along the ashen rail,
For he knows that soon the hail
Spill the chestnuts in the gale,
And he chatters, chatters, chatters,
In a frenzy of delight,
O'er the butternut that shatters
All his blooming appetite.

In the silent aisles of the forest, where the erstwhile Comanche painted himself until he became a multivermillionaire, the acorn patters on the dry leaves and discourses a sort of solo that lifts the poet from his rosiest reverie, even as successfully as could a sonnet's worth of pork and beans in the wistful pulse of twilight, when a purple curtain falls and the spirit, sad and weary, turns to thoughts of codfish balls, when the pumpkin brightly glimmers and the peckers lush and ripe, and the Bob [illegible] in the thicket plays upon his [illegible]chaum pipe. Oh, the days are [illegible]d purple, and the leaflet dots the [illegible] our grief[illegible]'s full of music, [illegible]e piggy twists his tail, and [illegible] has departed and the sumach's [illegible]red, for the cider mill is run[illegible] the soda fountain's dead. The [illegible] still flies down over the cen[illegible] fence, and the rooter regrets [illegible]e can't take root and grow on the bleachers and be on deck when the cry to "Play ball!" opens the next season, and the umpire again becomes eligible for the customary of the ribald enthusiast and amenable to the unwritten law which makes it proper for the multitude to discourse mad faudangoes upon his anatomy.

Oh, the cozy
Garden rosy
With the posy
Know no more,
And no rose cold
Makes the nose cold
When it blows cold
With a roar!

There is a rare pathos in the falling leaf, whose dainty embroideries make it seem too delicate a creation of nature to warrant the farmer in unduly casting it beneath the cow for a bed. Jack Frost has brought out its slender veins of beauty with his subtlest and most consummate skill, and when the goat eats it his spirit is filled with a joyous beauty, a symphony of vibrant color that lights his soul and manifests its mystic presence when he nods idly to and fro while the vagrant zephyr strays through his askew whiskers and makes him murmur in languid ecstasy, "Alas, alack, a well a day!"

The canna no longer puts forth its great leaves in the bed behind the aviary, and the vines of the honeysuckle tremble in petulant unrest, while the professional grass cutter wrings his knuckles in anguish and moans, "Woe is me, Alhama," or words to that effect, while he crouches in the wood shed and hones the snow shovel with a heart full of hope and a rattail file. His tears drip from his patriarchal beard like 18 carat diamonds, and he is a picture of despair fit to hang on the walls of the Vatican.

Oh, the lily's pottered out,
Marguerite,
And the straw hat's up the spout,
Marguerite,
And the robins swiftly fly
Down the cloud bedappled sky
To avoid the pigeon pie,
Marguerite!

And now at the head of the grand autumnal pageant the golden pancake bursts forth in an avalanche of glory, warranted not to fade or crumble, but to increase in beauty and velocity and fill the heart with the reminiscent joys of childhood, while defying the teeth of time, and sing in the wild refrain that the hand that makes the batter is the hand that rules the world.

Oh, the russet leaf is curling,
And the thistle down is whirling,
And the gay and festive piglet
In the pen performs a jiglet,
And the plaintive, piping cricket
Sings and dances in the thicket.
While the Pawnee
Jumps sky high
O'er the tawny
Pumpkin pie!
Oh, the apple ripe and red
Falls and hits you on the head,
As the orchard way you tread
Soundeth,
And the sportsman's gun you hear
In the crystal atmosphere,
When he knocks the rabbit clear
Inside out!

The persimmon has already annexed the frost, but still it puckers the small boy's mouth until it feels like a washboard and he makes faces that would earn the fortune of a pantomime clown.

Now the chicken thief's in limbo,
And the chestnut's on the roast,
And the woodcock lies akimbo
On the bosom of the toast.
Put aside the airy duster
That the summer time recalls,
From the hollow tail
Of the swallowtail,
Four forth the camphor balls.
For the yellow leaflets cluster
On the sidewalk, don't you know,
And the turkey that's a buster
Ripens in the afterglow.

When Stamps Were Little Used.

Stamps were put on the market in August, 1847, but were so little used that the government had to pass a law enforcing prepayment of postage which went into effect in 1855. Before this action was taken scarcely one letter in a dozen was found with a stamp affixed. Today the postoffices of the country sell 4,000,000,000 stamps, accounting postal cards, stamped envelopes and stamps of all kinds valued at $75,000,000, during a single year.

The Words We Use.

An authority estimates that an illiterate day laborer in the rural districts will use only 300 to 500 words; that a skilled workman of the average reading and information will use 5,000, and that an orator will employ from 8,000 to 12,000.

Cancer

Mrs. A. H. Crausby, of 158 Kerr St., Memphis, Tenn., paid no attention to a small lump in her breast, but it soon developed into a cancer of the most malignant type. The best physicians in New York treated her, and finally declared her case hopeless. As a last resort, S. S. S. was given, and an immediate improvement resulted; a few bottles cured her completely, and no sign of the disease has returned for ten years.

A GREAT DIVINE.

Bishop W. X. Ninde Preaches in Fort Wayne.

Two Large Audiences Hear the Eloquent Minister at the Wayne Street M. E. Church.

Rev. William X. Ninde, D. D., of Detroit, a bishop of Methodist Episcopal church, occupied the pulpit of the Wayne street church both morning and evening yesterday. At both services the big auditorium of the church was filled. The prominence of Bishop Ninde in his church and his eminence as a pulpit orator drew the Wayne street church many persons from other congregations

In the evening Bishop Ninde preached a powerful sermon from the words of the Prophet Zephaniah, 3:17: "He will rest in His love." In the course of his singularly eloquent and forcible discourse Bishop Ninde paid a glowing tribute to the power of love. The Bible, he said, was in short a great commentary on love, and showed how God loved His creatures. Those metaphysicians who directed their logic against the Christian belief that the Infinite God could feel and be moved by love as men conceive it, he said, made no appeal to him, nor should they to Christians anywhere. The Creator who implanted love in the human heart Himself must love what He had created.

In the closing part of his discourse Bishop Ninde said that the greatest work that was now going on in the church was the tearing down of the barriers that had so long divided the classes from the masses in the worship of God. That had long been the shame of the church, but it was passing away. The lowly, the wretched and the outcast must be reached and were being reached through the various instrumentalities of the church.

At the close of the services nearly all those who had heard the splendid [illegible] pressed forward to shake [illegible] with the venerable bishop and [illegible] delightful impromptu reception [illegible] held for a few minutes in the [illegible]el hall.

A WILD DELIRIUM.

Barkeeper John Droegemeyer Escapes From the Hospital.

Overpowers the Nurse and Runs Through the Streets Like a Maniac--Caught by Officer Stevens.

John Droegemeyer, a barkeeper, was taken to the St. Joe hospital Saturday, suffering with a bad case of delirium tremens. Early last evening Droegemeyer overpowered the nurse and jumped through a window. He fled through the streets only partially clad and was finally caught in the neighborhood of the Fairfield avenue railroad crossing by Officer Stevens. Blood was streaming from several wounds on his head and face, caused by broken glass in his leap for liberty. The patrol wagon conveyed him to the jail hospital, where a close watch was kept on him the rest of the night. He shows signs of becoming rational and will probably be all right in a few days.

WESTMINSTER CONCERTS

To be Repeated This Season--Mrs. Root to Assist.

Westminster church was well filled last night and the hearers were greeted with a most delightful service. Dr. Leeper spoke on the thome, "Sons of a Monkey or Sons of God," and sought to show his hearers the value of the soul, which distinguishes man from the lower animal creation. He cared not where a man came from, but where he should go after this life. The musical selections were well rendered. Professor Corns has a trained tenor voice and is a composer of considerable reputation, and frequently renders his own compositions. His ability as a director is making itself evident in the excellent renderings of the chorus of trained voices and, assisted by such artists as Mrs. Fisher, Miss Tillie Lindeman and Professor Jennison, he will be easily able to sustain the high reputation of Westminster church. Rev. Leeper announced two Westminster concerts to be given during the season, in which assistance will be given by Reineke's orchestra, Miss Anna Rogal Root, of Chicago, and others A part of the object of these concerts is to furnish proper entertainments to the people at popular prices and the admission will be twenty-five cents for the two if the tickets are subscribed for, and otherwise twenty-five cents single admission.

HOUSES BURNED.

Firemen Have a Lively Blaze to Fight Early Sunday Morning--The Losses.

About 2 o'clock Sunday morning Theodore Robbins, of 55 Hugh street, was awakened by the crackling of flames and, rushing into the yard, he discovered his house burning. The entire east side of the building was in flames. Mr. Robbins gave the alarm and assisted his wife and baby to escape. The inmates of the other houses were awakened in time to save a few household effects. The house at 53 Hugh street was occupied by James Cox, the plumber and owned by his mother. The house east of Robbins' is occupied by Frank Smith, a carpenter employed at the east yards. Both houses were owned by Henry Meyer, of East Lewis street. The fire is thought to have originated in the garret of the Robbins house. This was entirely destroyed and the others badly damaged. All the losses are partially covered by insurance.

A NEW ROUTE.

Will C. Moulton Making the Journey Across the United States.

Will C. Moulton, of Decatur, Mich., is in the city, having struck Fort Wayne in his route on a bicycle journey from south eastern Canada to Mexico. This is an unusual trip for wheelmen to make, lying as it does diagonally across the United States. Mr. Moulton is not seeking notoriety, in which he differs from the average run of tourists who are making big journeys. He is a personal friend of F. A. Hull, of the Newspaper Union, whose guest he was while in the city. He made THE SENTINEL a call and talked entertainingly of his long ride.

A PLUNGE TO DEATH.

the river, they are believed to be in the day coach, which lies in water up to its roof off King's dock. The diver took six bodies out of this car last evening and said he could find no more. A good many believe, however, that other dead bodies will be found in this car when it is raised. Passengers who escaped from this car and the crew have said that at least twelve persons perished in the day coach.

Sounds were made to locate the locomotive, near which are supposed to be the bodies of Engineer Foyle, Fireman Tompkins and A. G. MacKay, private secretary to Superintendent Van Etten. The engine is supposed to be lying in fifty feet of water, under or near the sleeping cars Hermes and Niobe. Half of the side of the day coach from which many bodies have been taken has been torn away and it is possible that some bodies of those drowned floated away or else are at the bottom of the river.

The work of searching for bodies, which had been temporarily suspended at 2 o'clock this morning after the parlor car Glen Alpine had been hoisted, was resumed at daybreak. As the occupants of the other two sleepers in the river have been accounted for by the conductor and porters, it is to be presumed that no Wagner passengers were killed. There was found in the car Glen Alpine in valets and pocketbooks $900 in money, in sums ranging from $150 to $300, and eight gold watches, one of them being a lady's chatelain. Some of the watches bear monograms, by which they can be identified.

There were also found a variety of diamonds, sleeve buttons, studs and a pearl pin, all kinds of wearing apparel, satchels, umbrellas and shoes.

AN EXPERT'S OPINION.

Roadmaster Otis, who is considered one of the most expert track builders in this country, told a reporter of the Associated Press that the sinking of the roadbed was due primarily to some almost unaccountable action of the water on the embankment. The sand and gravel had been washed out, leaving a crust under the track, which collapsed under the weight of the train. Mr. Otis could not understand why the retaining wall of solid masonry gave way as it did.

Trains are now moving with but little delay, on one track, and we shall have two tracks in operation by tomorrow. We shall not refill the sunken section until we are absolutely certain of the cause of its collapse, and determine the best method of rebuilding it."

The Parlor Conference of Charities at the residence of Mr. M. B. Fisher, 227 West Wayne street, Saturday evening, October 23, was well attended notwithstanding the short, impromptu notice and the many usual engagements of that evening. There were present the president and secretary of the Associated Charities, the president of the Relief union, several members of committees, and other friends and workers. Upon invitation the northern secretary of the Industrial Missionary association of Alabama, Rev. C. N. Pond, made a statement of the work of that society both among the poorest of plantation negroes in the south and throughout the country in general propogation of the most recent ideas of successful, preventive and curative charity. He described practical methods now actually in use in such cities as Indianapolis, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Erie, Dunkirk, Auburn and elsewhere. The statement was interspersed with frequent questions and followed by a general and free conference.

A Scheme to Remove the Weeds Lining the Shores of Rome City's Lake.

The Grand Rapids Railroad company, at the request of cottage owners, will lower the lake at Rome City four feet in order that the thick growth of weeds near the shores may be removed. The water is now going out at the rate of four inches a day. When the vegetation is exposed it will be allowed to dry and then a match will be applied. FRANCE WAS IN PERIL.

Great Britain Came Near Attacking Her in 1893.

A hitherto unpublished incident of recent international history has been given to the light, as a kind of sequence to a conversation with the Emperor William lately published in the London Times. In the beginning of the year 1893 the English Government, over which Lord Rosebery presided, alarmed at the spirit of hostility to the persistent policy of expansion followed by England in the far east and Africa generally displayed by the European governments, except that of Italy, is said to have determined on boldly declaring war against France and crushing her scattered squadrons and her home fleet before assistance could come from any quarter. The French action in Siam, when the French ships of war bombarded the Siamese batteries of Paknam, at the mouth of the Menam river, on which Bangkok, the capital, is situated, is cited as the opportunity Lord Rosebery wished for.

On the 28th of July, 1893, he sent for M. d'Estournelles, the French charge d'affaires in London in the absence of the ambassador, and curtly informed him that if his government went any further it would be war. An hour after Lord Rosebery invited Count Tornielli, the Italian ambassador, to the foreign office, and asked him if his government was ready to act at once with England against France. Count Tornielli referred the matter to his government, which immediately laid the matter before the German Government, in conformity with its obligations as a member of the triple alliance, and the Emperor William without hesitation advised the Italian Government to refrain. The publication of this incident has created considerable sensation in the political world, and has given rise to all manner of speculation as to the object of it.

A PLUNGE TO DEATH.

New York Central Train Goes Into the Hudson.

The Embankment Gave Way Beneath the Engine.

More Than a Score of Persons Meet Instant Death.

A Number of Chinamen Among the Victims.

Shocking Cars Rolled Into the River and the Escape of the Many Passengers Was Miraculous.

GARRISON, N. Y., Oct. 23.—With out an instant's warning twenty souls were hurled into eternity early yesterday morning in a railroad horror which is almost without parallel. Train No. 46, of the New York Central and Hudson River, was thrown down the embankment a short distance below Garrison's station, and plunged into the river. The officials say there were 100 persons on the train.

Train No. 46 was made up of engine No. 372, an express car, a combined baggage and smoking car, a day coach and six sleeping cars, Glen Alpine, Hermes, Niobe, Diana, Aura and Raquet River, in the order given. The train was in charge of William Parrish, one of the oldest of the company's conductors.

It passed Garrison at 4:47 o'clock and was running at the usual rate of speed. When about three miles this side of the station the rails seemed to suddenly sink beneath the weight of the engine. With a deafening crash and the hiss of escaping steam the engine plunged down the embankment, dragging with it all but three of the sleeping cars.

CAUSE OF THE DISASTER.

The disaster was due to the breaking of the sea wall, which for forty years and more has been a bulwark between the waters of the river and the railroad tracks. A narrow lane of crumbled earth marks the place where there were ties and rails. The state railroad commissioners are here investigating the cause of the accident.

The train left Buffalo at 7:30 o'clock yesterday evening. It went out ahead of the Buffalo express, which usually preceded it, for the reason that the express was delayed taking on scenery for the theatrical company headed by James J. Corbett. There was a difference of about twenty minutes between the two trains.

The roadbed between Garrison and Highlands runs close to the river. The Hudson is here forced between headlands. The channel is deep and the current swift. The water within a few feet from the shore is fifty feet deep. A few strokes of an oar brings the boatman to a channel 100 feet in depth. The retaining wall which buttresses the railroad embankment is of rough stone. Midway between Garrison and Highlands is a marble dock, to be henceforth known as the place near which one of the great tragedies of American railroading occurred.

HOW THE HORROR occurred.

The sun was just glinting over the highlands of the Hudson, revealing the red and gold of autumn upon the wooded heights, when the train and its sleeping passengers were dashed into the stream. The train left Garrison on time, at 5:47. She sped for nearly two miles, then there came a crash, three jars which shook the string of cars from end to end, a grinding of wood and steel and glass, and there the cars fell over the embankment into the river.

The earth had burst from its retaining wall, the rails curved outward with the advance of the engine, then the fish plates broke and sent the Buffalo special to its doom.

The engine, following the rails, parting out at an angle of thirty degrees, dashed into the river. It buried itself in the sand. John Foyle, the engineer, and John Tompkins, the fireman, went with it. Their bodies are in the channel, many fathoms deep. They were drowned at their posts.

TAKING OUT THE VICTIMS.

One end of the Glen Alpine rolled under the Hermes, and the Niobe left the track and rolled half over. The Diana, Aura and Raquet River stood upon the track, though all were damaged by the shock. The shrieks of men, women and children arose from the splintered cars as they sank into the Hudson.

Those who went to their death were in the combination car and the day coach. The occupants of the combination coach had no chance for their lives.

There were a dozen or more Chinamen there and the poor wretches shrieked and ran about their pen of wood and glass. The waters of the river rose fast to them. The drowned men joined to the main and clung to the racks, smashed the glass of the ventilators with their fists. The cries of the Chinamen still ring in the ears of those who were active in the tragedy of the rail. Only two of the Chinamen escaped.

The day coach, in which was the greatest loss of human life, was a floating death trap. It was taken by the tide and carried down the stream. It was like a galley, scuttled and sinking, where slaves chained to their seats at the oars go with one last cry to their doom in the sea.

Conductor Parrish, who was in the day coach, managed to escape through a window and gained the shore. William Carr, a Wagner porter, and a passenger jumped into a small boat near the dock and signaled a tug which they saw approaching. The brakeman of the rear car had meanwhile run back to signal the express which was approaching.

The passengers of the sleeping cars, hurled from their berths by the shock, ran shrieking to the doors. The vestibules of all except the last two sleepers were broken. The first sleeper, the Glen Alpine, was submerged at the forward end. The passengers rushed to the rear end to escape the flood. The car was tipped up, and to those who were confined within it seemed as though the waters were rising farther.

WORK OF RESCUERS.

The work of rescue was quickly carried on with such means as could be found. There were some oars and boats, and to them is due the credit of saving many lives. The axes in the glass boxes fixed to the sleeping cars were torn from their fastenings and porters, brakemen and conductors led the work of rescue. The passengers of the train behind, which had come up shortly after the accident, lent their aid.

James J. Corbett, the pugilist, and his manager, Mr. McVey, lost no time in getting to the wreck. The pugilist jumped upon the car to which the Chinamen were imprisoned, and with an ax cut a hole through the roof. With the aid of some of the trainmen, he dragged out two of the Chinamen through the aperture. The miserable creatures were hanging to the ventilators.

The crew of the tug John A. Logan performed the first rescue. They had seen the signals of the boat rowing out to them and had also seen the floating wreck. The tug left a wake of rearing water behind, as she steamed toward the half submerged day coach. As the tug came alongside the car, deck hands jumped upon the roof, and with axes tore off the sheathing in several places.

The men at work upon the roof, as their axes tore openings, heard the shrieks of the passengers below, which soon subsided to groans, and gradually ceased altogether. They saw, nevertheless, fingers lose their hold upon the ventilator windows, and then heard the sound of bodies dropping into the water.

Heartrending Scenes at the Place Where the Frightful Work Occurred.

GARRISON, N. Y., Oct. 25.—The gray day dawn, twenty four hours after the frightful happening of yesterday, broke upon a scene of greater bitter and property destruction than yesterday's sun and last night's torchlight displayed. The wrecking gangs of wreckers were relieved early this morning by fresh ones and the work of getting the cranes from the derricks upon the submerged cars was vigorously prosecuted. As the wreckage was pulled from the bottom of the river and placed on shore it added to the pathos as the thought that rowing sight.

When the wreckers got sufficient tackle on the sleeping car Glen Alpine to drag her up, there was much excitement and speculation, as it was believed that there must surely be some bodies in this car, the most deeply submerged of the lot. When the car had been placed on the shore and the water had run out of it, a searching party went through, and to the relief of the railroad officials and everybody near, not a body was discovered. Some curious things were found, however, which tends to make the escape of the passengers in this car almost miraculous.

HEAD CLEAR FOR AUTHORITIES.

Not only were the blankets and curtains thrown down and jammed into the front of the car, but the seat bottoms, which at night serve as bed bottoms, the mattress and pillows and every movable thing in the car had been jammed from side to side and from end to end of the car in a manner that would seem to almost preclude the possibility of any person in the car escaping. It is believed, however, that all in the car escaped, and as there were a full score of hand bags and satchels in the car there must have been that number of passengers. Some of the people in the vicinity and the hotel keeper at Garrison say that they helped dress some of these people, but the supposition is that the majority of those who escaped with their lives and not their baggage were taken care of by the passengers in the sleepers that remained on the trace and when taken to New York City were provided with clothes by the railroad people.

FORTUNATE MEDICAL PEOPLE.

In the state room of this car were a reside and groom, who escaped with the others. Just to the rear of the Glen Alpine was the car Hermes, which in the plunge left its trucks and landed flat on its bottom in the river, but only in about three feet of water. The porter of this car, William Patterson, an intelligent and well headed man, tells the most graphic story of the wreck, and one which will probably be found to be the nearest lucid explanation of how so many sleeping people were miraculously saved from death.

A PORTER'S GRAPHIC NARRATION.

He related the story to Col. Ashley W. Cole, the president of the state railroad commission, who is making an investigation. He said:

"I had before the accident I was awakened from a doze by the slowing up of the train and I got up, thinking we were nearing Peekskill. I looked out of the window and just as I did so there came a crash and the leap of the car towards the river. I was thrown to the floor but, getting up in a moment, I seized a hammer and pushing outside broke all the windows on the shore side, and in a few minutes had gotten my twelve passengers out. I am positive every one got out, because there was only a foot or so of water in the car at that time. When all my passengers had gotten out we began to look out for the others. The car Hermes was just ahead of mine, and had plunged into deeper water, so that one end was completely submerged while the other was against the end of ours and a trifle higher. I saw the people climbing out of the high end and I am quite positive that before the car settled into deep water we got everybody out. Some of the people were scantily dressed. They hurried away to the other cars and I think they went to New York.

"After we had gotten out all the sleeping car passengers we saw some people from the combination car swimming to the river and we helped them to safety. I am afraid that, though some people were liberated from the other cars at night, they were drowned because of the cold water cramping them."

T. H. Parsons, who was thought to have perished in the railway disaster at Garrison yesterday, is at his home in Brooklyn. He sustained some painful bruises, but was not seriously hurt. The injured from the wreck who were taken to the Flower hospital, in this city, are all doing well. There is no possibility that any of them will die from their hurts.

THE ENGINE LOCATED.

The engine was raised by a diver this afternoon, but no bodies were discovered. The engine was about thirty feet from the shore in about sixty feet of water, and firmly imbedded in the mud. The cab was completely wrecked, and the fender had become separated from the engine.

A POSSIBLE CAUSE.

Colonel Cole said today that while the bank may have given way, it was equally possible that a driving rod of the engine had broken and, striking it off the track, had torn along the character. If there are any bodies in the river [illegible]

TALES OF DEATH.

No More Food Can Reach the Klondike This Winter.

Transportation Companies Have Abandoned Such Attempts Whatever Else Some Persons May Contemplate.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 25.—Miners who came down on the steamer Danube from Dyea and who left Dawson City about forty days ago, are five days before they left Dawson, one of the managers of the Alaska Commercial company, arrived in a canoe and told of the abandonment of efforts to get food up the river. Fully 600 miners at once made preparations to start out over the trails, but the citizens committee refused to allow them sufficient provisions for the journey so to save those who had already started all will have to remain and share in the privations at Dawson City.

Charles Price, of Tacoma, who came out with Burt Weeks and Archie Burns, says that, besides the famine, a mysterious disease has broken out and is carrying off an average of five men daily. Twenty-four hours after the victim is attacked he turns black from the waist to the throat and two days later, in a majority of cases, is dead. In his way out over the Dalton trail, which, in many places, runs along the Yukon banks, the party met many boats bound down. About 300 boats are now going down the river with from three to seven men in each boat. The Price party was the last to leave Dawson. At Five Finger Rapids they fell in with the party headed by Kay Stuart, of New York, which left six days before, and reaching Dalton's boat they caught up with the party composed of John Fey, F. L. and J. Tripps and C. Holden, of New York, with an Indian guide.

This party ran short of food, and for four days none had any food save an owl which they shot and some soup made from a rawhide strap which they were using to pack by their goods.

The Farnhams brought down about $40,000 in gold.

MAKES IT A REQUEST

Western Union Company Asked to Remove Poles.

No Trouble Looked For—Board of Works Proposes Improvements for Seventy Years.

The board of works has addressed a letter to Manager O. L. Perry, requesting the Western Union Telegraph company to supplant the overhead wires in Calhoun street with a conduit system. The request is made in view of the contemplated street improvements to be made in the spring, and it is supposed that the company will not hesitate to comply with it. The state law makes it possible for the city to force an order and enforce it, but the authorities prefer to get it in a fair and businesslike way and have the change made amicably. Manager Perry will refer the matter to the home office.

THEIR LIKE OTHERS.

The Central Union Telephone company and the Jersey Electric Light and Power company also have poles along Calhoun street. They have not been notified, but will be soon. The electric light company may decide to take their service off of a portion of Calhoun street if forced to put in underground wires, for in some squares they have only a few consumers.

SWIMMING PARK.

A number of substantial improvements will be made at the park next spring, among them a bicycle track. At a meeting of the board this afternoon the matter of having an artificial lake built was discussed and it is more than likely that such a lake will be built in accordance with plans submitted last year by John H. Limbrock, of Chicago.

TO AN ORANGE GROVE.

David D. Schlatter, who for eleven years past has held a position in the hardware store of Fledler & Schlatter, resigned his position last Saturday and will leave shortly for Los Angeles, Cal. His family will accompany him and they will make that their permanent home. Mr. Schlatter will have charge of an orange grove near Los Angeles. Last Saturday evening his associates in the store called upon him unexpectedly to bid him good bye and wish him all kinds of good luck. As a testimonial of their esteem they presented him with a handsome gold headed cane, suitably inscribed.

CONSUMPTION CURE.

Dr. Hirschfelder of San Francisco Has a New Remedy.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—The claims of Dr. Joseph Hirschfelder, of this city, that he has discovered a cure for consumption, announced last April, has been investigated by the faculty of the Cooper Medical college. Sixteen patients who have been treated with carbolic acid, as the doctor calls his preparation, have been examined, and the report to be made this week will be favorable. Dr. L. F. Lane, president of the college, announces his faith in the discovery, which is now known a secret one as the method of preparation is freely given to the medical profession.

MILLIONS IN TRUST.

Executors Have the Will of the Late George M. Pullman.

Vast Estate in the Hands of Robert T. Lincoln and N. K. Fairbank—Widow to Be Amply Provided With.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Five sheets of legal cap paper, covered on both sides with writing and representing a distribution of $25,000,000 in money, real estate, bonds, mortgages and notes, were confided to the care of Robert T. Lincoln and Norman B. Ream. The document was the last will and testament of George M. Pullman, the dead millionaire and palace car magnate. It was placed in a safe in the residence of Mr. Lincoln, at 60 Lake Shore drive, after the latter and Mr. Ream, in their capacity as executors, had received the record of Mr. Pullman's deposits into their keeping.

In accordance with the wishes of the Pullman family the will will be filed tomorrow or Wednesday. Rumors of possible complications resulting from the document in the arrangement of the estate are not credited by those who are familiar with the text of the will. Mr. Lincoln, after perusing the document, said that it was comparatively simple, considering the extensive interests involved. On account of the illness of Mr. Ream arrangements for placing the will within the jurisdiction of the court have fallen on Mr. Lincoln.

It is understood that the bulk of the estate will devolve upon Mrs. Pullman, the widow, to be held by her until her death, when it will revert to the children under certain conditions for the sons. Mrs. Florence Lowden, one of the daughters, and regarded as the favorite child, will be made one of the wealthiest women in Chicago. A considerable portion of the estate will also be inherited by her on the death of her mother. Mrs. Frank J. Carsden, the other daughter, receives in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, but is not otherwise endowed as her sister.

George M. and W. Seaver Pullman, the sons, brothers and only male issue, will have to undergo the period of probation before they will be entrusted with any portion of the late millionaire's fortune. It is learned through a close friend of the family, who has seen the will, that neither of the boys will look for liberal allowances. A number of shares of the Pullman Palace Car company and other business corporations in which their father was interested will be turned over to trustees, who will provide them with the funds due from time to time.

Three years of the will are devoted to the sons. Mr. Pullman disposed of the portions of the estate which the daughters should receive in a few strokes of the pen. Jennie to keep the boys from being millionaires in their own right and at the same time arrange matters so that they should not be left without funds, Mr. Pullman found it necessary to devote the greater part of his will to restrictions on the allowances of his sons.

Friends of the Pullman family estimate the income which is to be received by each of the sons at from $2,000 to $3,000 a year for five years. In the event of their living up to the provisions of the will they will then receive a large interest in the estate. Mrs. Pullman is empowered, it is understood, to distribute the residue of the fortune which is here by bequeathed. Speculation is made, however, that the sons, in order to inherit their share, must secure the good will of the entire family during the probationary period.

HOT-BED FOR EDITORS.

Little Village of Colfax Has Produced a Large Crop.

A writer in the Alton Democrat furnishes the following interesting information concerning the small but ancient hamlet of Ludlow, in Noble county: "We will venture to say that the little hamlet of Ludlow, in this county, has turned out more editors according to its population than any other village in the state of Indiana. They consist in the two years of W. W. Harding, Lallie Storey, Miss Metta A. Harding, of the Young Folks, H. E. Wentworth, of the Laporte Argus, J. S. Gunkinger, of the Kendallville Sun, Brook Bierman, of the Bremen Enquirer, and we might add W. K. Stauffer, of the Angola Herald, and Mrs. Clara Parker, of the Kendallville News. That kind and noble woman, who has always been the guiding star and made her last resting place, and we drop a sprig of ever green to her memory."

READY FOR IT.

Both Lorigans and Maher to Have Seats for Thursday.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—Both Joe Lorigan and Joe Walcott are down to weight and in fine fettle for their fight on next Friday night. Walcott has had no trouble in reducing to 135 pounds and is pronounced by the experts to be fit for the fight of his life.

Lorigan at present weighs 134 pounds and will let up in his work for the next few days. The men will weigh in at 6 o'clock on Friday evening and must be within 135 pounds. Walcott is a favorite in the betting at odds of 10 to 8 and 10 to 7.

The demand for seats for this fight is something unprecedented in local ring history. Many orders have been booked from Nevada and from Oregon and Arizona. Nearly every city in the state has applied for tickets.

Chester Ely Smith, who is manager of a hotel at Victoria, B. C., has written to a sporting man asking him to match him with Peter Jackson, the fight to take place in this city. If Smith is unable to get a go with Peter he stands ready to meet the winner of the Goddard-Stanley match.

Grace Elliott Talks of Her Prospective Wealth.

Miss Van Dusen of Detroit Has Suddenly Become Famous—Miss Grace Elliott Says Mrs. Garrick Is Crazy—Her Own Plans for the Future.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—Miss Grace Elliott, nee Clark, who claims to be the daughter of the late James Clarke, alleged to have left a fortune of $25,000,000, is confident that she will have no trouble in proving her right to inherit this vast estate. When asked if she would fight the case to the end she said: "Why there is nothing to fight. The property is mine and I'll go to England and get the papers. That's all. I'll give something to those eastern girls who will have to pay their lawyers. Vice President Hobart and Mr. Gingles, I'll be liberal, because they are relations, you know. Then I'll come back, build a handsome residence and make my home here and I'll marry an American. No foreign title for me. I'm going to found a splendid home for tenderloin children and dedicate it to my father's memory. It is hard to realize that I am rich. And in the dream she continued to talk as though the scepter had visionary Fortune was already in her hands.

A THRIFTY TRAMP.

He Coolly Steals a Railroad in Connecticut.

Made Time and a Degree of Recklessness Over the Rickety Shore Road.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 25.—Farmers along the line of the abandoned Moriches, Waterbury and Connecticut River railroad have been entertained by a tramp under peculiar circumstances. He dropped at nearly every house along the road and told this story:

"My employer, Judge Robertson, sent me from his New Haven office to close up the affairs of the road. As the last through which the road runs reverts to the persons who owned it prior to the track being laid, Judge Robertson is disposing of all the passenger stations, pumping stations, tanks, railroad ties, &c.

"The judge is anxious to sell off these superannuated houses as much as possible, so that the land can be titled once more in all its verdant freshness."

The man "sold" over $1,000 worth of property to Hoyt Mosher for $2 on account with railroad ties thrown in. At West Cheshire he offered to sell the depot for $100, dropped to $5, and accepted $1 from a confiding yokel. In each case the tramp signed receipts for the money.

SOCIETY AT A BALL GAME.

Enthusiasm at Dayton Team Wins Over Columbus.

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 25.—The greatest game of base ball in point of attendance and gate receipts ever seen in this part of the state was played here Saturday afternoon. It was a game for charity, the proceeds to go to the two hospitals of the city. The Dayton city club inaugurated the game, and society, business, and the professions helped it along. Ten thousand tickets were sold, some of the boxes selling for $50. The gate receipts were over $5,000. The game resulted in a score of 10 to 7. The teams were made up of bankers, manufacturers, and millionaires. One nine was called the Tigers, the other the Kids. The game was funny, hilarious, and enthusiastic. The umpires carried revolvers and swords. The pulpits of the common pleas court umpired, and a third judge played first base. Two bands of music enlivened the game. A German band serenaded every man who made an error. It was a rich and great success.

BETTER OUTLOOK.

Business in Canada Takes a Decided Increase.

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Consul general Turner at Ottawa, in a report to the state department, says that Canada has been suffering from business depression, but during the past few months a revival has set in. He adds: "The prospects of the future men of Canada are at present directed toward fostering trade with England, on which it would seem, that the system of preferential duties lately adopted, and the denunciation of the favored nation treaties by England would have an apparent effect. The experiment has not as yet been a decided success, as imports from England have fallen off. Canada buys more from the United States than from any other country."

ANTHONY GOCKE.

A Fort Wayne Pioneer Goes to His Long Rest.

He Lived Here Nearly Half a Century—Death of Chilly Nesbit—Other Deaths and Funerals.

After years of suffering, Anthony Gocke passed away peacefully at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Grimme, his death occurring at half past 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Gocke was very popular, having many friends and acquaintances all over the northern part of the state and northwestern Ohio, and was esteemed by all who knew him. He was a noble and generous man and a kind father. One of his strong traits and which, no doubt, won him many substantial friends, was his promptness. He was prompt in everything. Mr. Gocke was born near Paterborn, West Phalia, Germany, on November 3, 1815; he emigrated to this country in 1850, landing in New Orleans after a voyage of twelve weeks. His destination being Fort Wayne, he took a boat to Whitehall, on which boat he landed. He was forced to remain there until the next spring as navigation had closed. In the spring of 1851 he took a boat for Lewisport, expecting his brothers to meet him there. However, upon arrival, he took a packet on the old Wabash and Erie canal for Fort Wayne. When he arrived here he learned that his brother had gone to Logansport to meet him, having gone on horse back. This was in the days before railroading. For several months he lived with his brother, the late Francis Gocke, then accepted a position with Gerhard Bekers, who conducted a general store, later he resigned and accepted a position with the late Bernard Troutman and remained with him. Troutman grocery for nearly one-third of a century, returning fifteen years ago. When Mr. Gocke was quite young he fractured his limb, which was the immediate cause of his death, he remained courageous to the last and looked forward to the end. Mr. Gocke was one of the founders of the St. Paul's Catholic church, at which place the funeral will occur at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Forty two years ago Mr. Gocke was married to Miss Elizabeth Bensman, who died nearly twenty three years ago. Six children survive him, Frank A., of Darke, Ohio; Henry J., of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. C. B. Grimme, Louis H., August C. and Clara J., of this city. The pall bearers are Gerhard Bekers, M. Gerulay, J. Alter, sr., P. Deere, A. Peschbert and William Bensman. His first employer in this country, Mr. Gerhard Bekers, will be one of his pall bearers.

GLAD TO GET BACK.

The Cowpuncher and Traveler Returns From the Western Country.

Two dilapidated prairie schooners drawn by worn out horses arrived in the city this morning but they come all the way from Kansas in three weeks' time. The seven parts of the wagons were H. Vaughn and Hosea Trimble, with their families. Mr. Vaughn said they he and his wife left Fort Wayne on a wagon bound for Kansas in 1873 and had located and since lived in Harper county, of that state. Not being successful in the west after all these years, they decided to move back. They left Buffalo county three weeks ago and had been on the go constantly. Mr. Vaughn said that the crops in Kansas were fairly all ruined from account of the dry weather. He said that he had seen better corn in Indiana than in any state they had passed through. Mr. Trimble and his family formerly lived in Paulding county, and they left for their old home.

BRICK HIT HIM.

Close Call for Charles Meyers at the Electrean.

Dr. Pressler and Family in a Runaway Accident—He Made Injured This Chapter of Accidents.

Charles A. Meyers, a workman at the Electrean building, had a close call this morning, and although he escaped death he received injuries that will trouble him for some time to come. Mr. Meyers was working on the first floor when a brick fell from the fourth story, striking him a glancing blow on the head and inflicting two ugly gashes. If the missile had struck him squarely on the head his skull would have been fractured and caused his death.

DR. PRESSLER INJURED.

Dr. Carl Pressler, who has been ill several weeks, felt so much better yesterday that he went out driving, his wife and baby accompanying him. While driving on Washington boulevard toward swimming park, the horse was frightened by the antics of a stubborn goat, which threw a boy from its back directly in front of the doctor's horse. The animal started to run away, swerving to the right into the yard of W. E. Moneman, where the vehicle was overturned and the occupants thrown out. Mrs. Pressler and the child escaped with a few slight bruises, but the doctor strained the muscles of his side, making him almost helpless. The runaway broke away from the carriage and ran several blocks before caught. The vehicle was badly wrecked.

NEARLY CROSSES TO DEATH.

Miss Clara Zimmerman, daughter of the East Main street druggist, nearly choked to death as a result of a piece of apple becoming lodged in her throat last Saturday evening. She could not remove the obstruction and she went into spasms. A physician was sent for and the apple was removed after some difficulty.

BROKE THEIR ARMS.

Dr. S. D. Sledd, while throwing hay from a loft in his barn on West DeWald street, fell through the chute into the manger below. Three ribs were fractured and he was badly bruised. Dr. Sledd is connected with the Sebell Loan and Investment company.

ELBOW DISLOCATED.

A little son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Hudgell, of West Jefferson street, fell from a tree while hickory nutting, and suffered a dislocation of his elbow.

GOT THERE AT LAST.

Dora Plowman, After a Checkered Career, Is Sent Up

For and An Accidental Journey Ends, Counted Guilty of Horse Stealing—Formerly Lived Here.

Dora Plowman, along with a male accomplice, James Ewers, has just been sentenced to three years at Carlinville, Ill., for horse stealing. Early and the woman with whom he had been traveling were arrested at Carlinville, June 17 last. The case came up last week, when both were speedily tried and convicted. It came out in the trial that Dora was a professional horse thief and it was shown that the pair had carried on extensive business in this line.

Dora formerly made Fort Wayne her stamping ground. She stole a horse and buggy from Fletcher's livery barn about a year ago, driving through to Roanoke, where the outfit was identified by a livery man as Fletcher's but before he could cause the female's arrest she had skipped out. She has figured frequently in the Fort Wayne police court.

They Throw Stones Into a Passenger Train.

Lads Are Arrested and Taken Before the Mayor, Who Lectures Them Some in Paternal Fashion.

Raymond Riley, aged eleven, and his brother, Flavius, aged nine, were before the mayor this morning to receive punishment for throwing stones through the window of a passenger train on the Pittsburg railroad, at the Broadway crossing. The lads were caught in the act. For some time complaints have reached the authorities of this vicious practice and the officers have been on the alert. The boys are the sons of Edward Riley, the well known carpenter. The boys were reprimanded and released.

SUICIDE.

Charles Glass arrested by Officer Holden on the charge of drunkenness, was let go.

Three tramp jumpers were let go.

The difference between Cleveland and Harrison is a difference only of terms. They mean all that is vicious in politics.

Next Friday is Arbor day. The SENTINEL wishes to repeat its recent suggestion that the day be generally observed in Fort Wayne.

Great Britain's rejection of the administration's silver overtures was foretold from ten thousand democratic stumps a year ago.

Two better things couldn't happen the same day than the election of both Low in New York and the defeat of Mark Hanna in Ohio.

Don't be deaf. But that is worse policy which seeks to pursue policy with policy. This statement may be a trifle involved, but we believe Mayor Schewer can unravel it if he will try.

Say that hump! That's what wheat's been doing for a day or two and Mark Hanna will point to it as an added reason why he should be elected to the United States senate.

Henry George's principles plainly as a promise can be made that if the people of New York give him the power he will find out by what means Boss Croker became wealthy. There is a consideration that certainly is worth while.

No one, we hope, will borrow offense if it is suggested that the streets and alleys, in short, the city generally, be given a thorough cleaning a week hence Saturday before corner stone day. Let us look our prettiest for the thousands who will be our honored guests on that occasion.

With no desire to be impertinent THE SENTINEL confesses a curiosity to know whether the convicted policy gambler for whom the police court docket has been stayed three months is to have immunity to earn the amount of his fine at the same old job. The way to wipe our policy is to wipe it out. See?

The next assessment will be made under the new dog law, which provides that diligent inquiry shall be made as to the number of dogs owned or harbored by the persons assessed, and that said persons shall pay immediately to the township assessor one dollar for each male dog and two dollars for each additional male dog or spayed female dog, and three dollars for each female dog owned. The assessor to give each person a receipt for the money paid him. Many of the provisions of the law are very exacting.

Seth Low has been developing surprising strength during the last week and his friends are more hopeful than ever of his triumph. The election in New York will be held one week from tomorrow and it is going to look as though there would be a stampede to Low by the time of voting. Platt's man is hopelessly in the rear and Henry George is daily making inroads on Tammany. If Croker and Platt shall be swept away by the same avalanche, the greatest victory yet achieved for good government will be the splendid fruits.

New Public Library Building.

Most timely, indeed, is the suggestion of Comptroller Bobo if that the city of Fort Wayne acquire ownership of the Y. M. C. A. building and convert it into a home for the public library. There are numerous reasons which give force to Mr. Bobo's suggestion. Chief among these are that the building can be purchased for many thousands of dollars less than would be necessary to procure an eligible site and erect so good a building, and that at a comparatively small outlay the Y. M. C. A. building may be so remodeled as to constitute admirably adapted quarters for the public library.

The present quarters of the library in addition to being wholly inadequate are singularly ill adapted for their purpose. The Y. M. C. A. building would make a fine library home and its location is far more than any other the city may hope to secure.

Mr. Bobo's suggestion deserves and will, we hope, receive prompt and serious attention.

The Man for Commissioner.

It is understood that there are a number of candidates for the county commissionership that will be made vacant at the expiration of Commissioner Stellhorn's term, owing to the death of John Orff, who had been elected to succeed him.

The new commissioner must come from the district in which Fort Wayne is situated. Because of the building of the new court house he should be one of our very strongest men. He should be a man whose very name will stand for honesty in the community. More than half a million dollars are to be expended on the new building and there may be temptations to betray the tax payers of the county. The man chosen to fill the impending vacancy should be a citizen whose character will be an added guarantee that the new building will be erected with absolute honesty, with faithful adherence to every requirements of the contract.

That the commissioners will be made the object of partisan attack is most probable there are those who for political ends may be willing to forget the duty they owe the welfare and peerless of the city and county and their obligations as citizens to hold the good name of the community in the highest respect. Let this sort of warfare be circumvented at the very outset by giving to the board of commissioners in the person of its every member such character for honesty and faithfulness as will itself be a firm refutation of any charges of betrayal of the people and put to shame all covert hints of jobbery.

Therefore, THE SENTINEL, as a democratic newspaper and the advocate of absolute honesty in office would urge exercise of the utmost care, of the highest judgement, of considerations single to the public good in the choice of a man for appointment to this place which is fraught with greater responsibilities than have ever rested upon it heretofore.

Mr. George and Mr. Croker.

Henry George's candidacy for the mayoralty of Greater New York evidently forces something. At its inception it meant war on Tammany. Now it seems to mean war in particular on the man who rules Tammany. From the New York man's report of a speech delivered by Henry George one night last week the following extract is taken:

If Mr. Croker has honestly come by his horses and hounds, with which he amuses himself on the other side of the water, let him remain here.

If this is not true, if these were got by the robbing of the people, let him go to England by the very next steamer. If I have power—and Mr. George's voice rang out—the penitentiary yawns for him. If I have power the fate of Tweed and the fate of McKane will be his, for, as I believe it, a great crime has been done. If the people come to their own, a crime must be punished as a crime, and if I am elected and have the power, the people who have committed these crimes must flee away.

That's the sort of talk to arouse the enthusiasm of honest folk. Not only prevent rascals from again plundering the public but punish them for the plundering they have already done. Croker is rich. He never had an income from any source that the public was aware of. "Where did he get it?" is a query that has become a joke. Where, indeed? Where, no doubt, he hopes to get more.

Two honest, furious, independent men are candidates for mayor of New York. Either will put a question on Croksenism and Plattism. Either will make Dick Croker an easier bow and whose. If Low shall be defeated then may George win.

Too Many Divorces.

The divorce docket of the courts is giving the marriage ceremony a race for first honors. This observation is not applicable to Allen county alone it is true of the state generally. During the past three months there has been a veritable epidemic of marital dissatisfaction and the truth has come to the surface in the divorce courts. In a majority of cases the complainants are women with husbands whose intemperance has wrecked the happiness of the home. It has always been so, perhaps always will be. And this raises anew the question if there be not some better remedy than the divorce for deserving wives and children from the brutalities of intemperate husbands and fathers. The whipping post for wife beaters is frequently suggested and while it may be called a revival of barbarism there is no denying that it would in many if not most cases be salutary punishment. Advocate Bishop Potter lately declared himself in favor of the whipping post and the policy, and the press and the clergy among eminent men as an advocate of such form of correction for wife beaters. It has been widely noised that wife beating is markedly on the increase in almost every community, especially in larger towns and cities. An examination of such of those cases as get into the police courts and the divorce courts discloses that the intemperance of husbands lies as the bottom cause. So with much force is presented the question if there may not be a better remedy than the wholesale murdering of the marriage tie—than the destruction of the home.

WORD CONTEST.

One Hundred Dollars in Cash to be Given Away.

Something to Entertain, Interest and Please the Young, the Old and the Middle Aged.

As the winter evenings are drawing nigh, when the young and old folks will have plenty of time for thought and work, we have discovered a little plan for their entertainment and amusement which will handsomely compensate them for the time and pains they may devote to it. We want to know how many words can be made from the letters,

THE FORT WAYNE SENTINEL.

Use each letter as desired, but not more times than it appears in "The Fort Wayne Sentinel." Verbs, pronouns, adjectives, nouns, adverbs, plurals allowed. Words spelled alike, but having different meanings, count as one word. Use no scholarly dictionary. All lost female, feminine, suffixes, obsolete and foreign words do not count. Work it out as follows: Tar, tray, hat, her, eat, eel, fall, first, etc., etc.

To the person making the largest list of words from the twenty letters found in THE FORT WAYNE SENTINEL we will pay $50; to the second, $25; to the third, $15; to the fourth, $10.

The words must be written on one side of the sheet and numbered and sent to this office addressed to

WORD EDITOR,

Not later than December 25, 1897, as the contest closes on the evening of that date. Begin now, but do not send in lists till near the close of the contest, as it is desired that all who engage in this competition shall strive earnestly to win the prize.

This is open to every man, woman and child in Fort Wayne, and Allen county and every county adjoining Allen. No other conditions are imposed. It makes no difference whether you are a subscriber to THE SENTINEL or not. All are eligible to enter the contest. Tell your neighbors and friends about it.

NORTHERN INDIANA NOTES.

The streets of Ashley are now lighted by electricity. An immodern plant will also be started there next week.

A. D. Caswell, of Fremont, Ind., has twenty tons of dried apples in cold storage in New York city and expects to receive a good stand price.

A badger, weighing twenty pounds, was killed on Main street in Laporte last week. How the animal ever got in that locality is not known. Old hunters agreed on the identity of the animal.

Daniel Green, of South Bend, informs the Times that fifty-seven years ago last Wednesday the snow was thirty eight inches deep in northern Indiana. He remembers the great storm well and says it lasted three days.

The Auburn Courier says John Weimer, a farmer of DeKalb county, is the leading potato grower of that section. He had twenty-eight acres planted in potatoes this year and his crop aggregated 2,100 bushels. He sold 455 bushels of early potatoes at eighty-five cents and to selling the late ones from his cellar at sixty cents per bushel. He invested $19.50 in Paris green and London purple and spent twenty-two days trudging back and forth in his potato fields carrying a knap sack sprayer on his back and killed millions of bugs. Most of this work was done when the thermometer stood at 100 in the shade. He realized about fifty cents per acre on the crop.

RAINS CAUSE LOSS.

Private Dispatches Reported from the Northern Part of California.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—Reports from the interior show that the heavy rains which fell this week all over the northern part of the state have caused immense loss to farmers and vineyards and will in all probability put an end to the shipment of grapes to the east. The total loss exceeds $1,000,000. In Fresno county alone it is estimated that the storms caused a loss of at least $500,000 to the raisin crop. Almost a quarter of the crop is lost.

WISE ADVICE TO HUSBANDS.

Those Who Have Ailing Wives Will do Well to Accept It.

Do not wrangle and quarrel, and finally rush into the courts and try to get a separation from your faithful wife; but just stop a moment and think! Your wife, who was once tempered and amiable, and all that was lovely when you married her, has changed. Now she is peevish, irritable, jealous, discontented and miserable—in a word, she has uterine disorder of some kind.

Law is not the remedy for this condition, she needs medical treatment, her uterine system is at fault.

My advice to you is, sit down and write a letter to that friend of women, Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., state fully and freely the whole case to her and she will honestly advise you what to do. Love your wife that chance, good man!

If you do not wish to write about your wife, bring her a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which its effects will soon woo the beginning of the improvement, then get her another and keep it up until she is restored to you, the same lovely woman you married years ago.

Following we relate the circumstances of a case of this nature. Mrs. Melva Rector, of Canby, Ind., says

"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it to be a great benefit to me. I had womb trouble. I had the headache all the time and a terrible backache, was nervous, sore and irritable. I looked so pale that people would ask me what was the matter. I suffered in this way for about four years, until one day about in despair my husband bought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I commenced to use, and much to every one's surprise, it cured me. It has completely changed my disposition for the better also. Several of my neighbors, knowing what the Pinkham medicine has done for me, are taking it, and are much pleased with the result."

Father William Quinlan, who was formerly of the Cathedral parish of this city, and for this reason it is desired that Fort Wayne be largely represented.

Memory of Sleepwalkers.

The memory of sleepwalkers is occasionally prodigious under the influence of the dominating impulse that moves them. There is an instance of a poor and illiterate basket maker who was unable to read or write, yet in a state of sleep he would preach fluent sermons, which were afterward recognized as having formed portions of discourses he was accustomed to hear in the parish church as a child more than 60 years before. Quite as strange a case of unconscious memory is referred to by Dr. Chereschewsky. A girl given to sleepwalking was in the habit of imitating the violin with her lips, giving the preliminary tunings and sawing and flourishing with the utmost fidelity. It puzzled the physician a good deal until he ascertained that when a child she lived in a room adjoining a fiddler who used to practice on his violin in the hearing.—Pearson's Weekly.

WON HIS DISCHARGE.

A Soldier Who Very Cleverly Worked the Government Dodge.

A soldier belonging to one of the Idaho infantry companies worked the impersonnie dodge cleverly enough a few years ago and got his discharge from the army as an incapable unfit for military duty. Before entering the service he had been a telegraph lineman, and when he came to the conclusion that he had had enough of the army he took developments as unfavorable means for climbing to the top of the flag pole on the post parade ground. He secured a pair of lineman's climbers, one evening at dress parade he had been cautioned on account of illness. When the soldiers were passing in review before the commanding officer at this evening function the ex-lineman was seen to rush across the parade ground in the direction of the flagpole, and in a jiffy he had scaled it to the very top. He paid no attention to the commands that were bawled at him to "come down out o' that," but pulled a small pair of field glasses from his blouse and began to survey the horizon. He gave no ear even to the commanding officer's demand that he descend instantly or get shot, nor did he as much as look below when he heard the command given to three members of the guard, "Aim—ready"—Of course, the command "Fire" was not given. The bluff did not work. The soldier stuck to his perch at the top of the staff and continued interrogating of the horizon with the field glasses. The officers of the post were in a quandary, and they were considering the advisability of saving the flagpole down when the soldier at the top of it climbed down.

"How any what?"

"Indians."

"Is that what you went up there for?" his captain asked him.

"Yes, sir. The Shoshonees are about to attack the post."

He was taken to the guardhouse and the post surgeon sent for. The surgeon found the soldier perfectly quiet and rational. He talked as sanely as any man could on general subjects, but he seemed firmly persuaded that it was his special business in society to watch out for Indians from the top of the flagpole. When he was released, he went directly to his quarters, fastened on his climbers without being observed and made such good time across the parade ground that he had almost attained the top of the flagpole before the pursuers reached the base. This time he remained at the top of the pole for several hours, paying no heed at all to anything that went on below. He was so busily engaged in examining the distant plains with his field glasses that he did not even see the soldiers rigging up a net at the foot of the flagpole. He was considerably surprised and grieved when he was jerked into the net by means of a lasso mercifully thrown by a soldier who had been a cowboy. He was out of the service within just the space of time that it required for a reply from the war department to an official letter concerning his condition sent from the post. The members of the guard who received the memorandum to the gate upon his discharge said afterward that there was a broad grin on the ex-lineman's face as they let him out.

"Well, how about the Indians now?" asked one of the guard just as the man was about to be turned loose at the gate.

"Indians, d——d," said the ex-lineman, displaying his wad of back pay and allowance bank notes and his discharge. "Are you all jay?"—New York Sun.

A Mechanical Response.

To judge from the following anecdote, Emperor Menelek of Abyssinia has a mechanical turn of mind not usually supposed to belong to the natives of the dark continent. It seems that M. Lagarde, the French minister to that country, having heard that the empress desired to possess a sewing machine, took pains to have one included among his luggage, but the roads of Abyssinia are capable of much improvement, and, although the machine was well packed, the accidents of the trip left it at the end in a sorry condition. When the case was opened, M. Lagarde found, to his chagrin, that the machine positively refused to work. Not being versed in the tools of making repairs of this sort, he was at a loss what to do, when Menelek appeared. "Let me look at it," he said. He unscrewed the machine, examined its plan of construction and, catching sight of a little spring which had become bent, remarked, "Why, you have only to straighten that out, and the machine will work." No sooner said than done. With a sharp blow from a hammer the negus put matters to rights, and the next minute the machine was running admirably, to the intense delight of the empress and the natural amazement of M. Lagarde.

TOO TRUE TO LIFE.

Why Verestchagin's War Pictures Displeased the Russian Government.

At the late day the Spanish academy has decided that Asselli Verestchagin has done more for the good of man in art than any other living painter. The basis on which this decision is made is that his purpose in his pictures is to inform men by showing in art the horror and reality of their evil deeds. If this is true, and many acknowledged it to be so as long before the Spanish academy acted, Zola, Poe, Ibsen and all the rest of the realistic writers have been anticipated in their province of painting all over the world. Verestchagin has been in retirement for more than two years now and little has been heard of him since his startling his countrymen of painting all over the world. He is now in Russia, where he has been ordered by the czar to paint a picture of the battle of Plevna, now governor general of the Philippines, Feliz Diaz men were put to death without even the shadow of a trial. He is reported also to have said that those who refused to recognize the terms of surrender agreed to by his lieutenant, General Valera, and who transported General Calixto Garcia and his officers after they had been assured that if they would lay down their arms their lives would not be molested.

Blanco was superseded as governor general of the Philippine islands from Spain on December 1896, when the insurrection in those islands caused him to be superseded by General Polavieja. He was charged with weakness in his efficiency and leniency toward the natives, and not long ago he denied, in a long article which he gave to the press, any such conduct.

It is understood that Captain General Blanco does not go to Cuba with free hands, but that he will act there in strict compliance with instructions that he is to receive from the cabinet. He promises, however, to act with equal energy against the insurgents and to establish peace by the same methods with which he won an ovation in 1875. It is said by some persons who claim to be here well informed, however, that the energy which he has at his command is small, for he is all gone in body and, physically and mentally. He is nearly 70 years old.

No Such Fears.

A writer in a recent number of The Strand Magazine gives currency to the following pointless anecdote: Mr. F. Litchfield, the well known art dealer exhibited some panels of old tapestry at the Manchester Jubilee exhibition. Wanting one of them returned, he wired: "Please send panel 5 by 20, Venus and Adonis. Litchfield." The department head of the exhibition was away, and his clerk returned the message to the postoffice as "not understandable." The postoffice people, struck with a bright idea, then transmitted the telegram to the city of Litchfield and received the following reply: "No such term as Venus & Adonis known here. Try Main hotel."

WEYLER'S SUCCESSOR.

General Blanco to Be Recently on August of Money.

The Spanish government has declared that no future policy in dealing with its rebellious colonists is to be merciful. People who know the past record of the man selected to succeed Weyler, "the butcher," will accept this statement only with some modification. Captain General Blanco will be filling an unenviable role if he goes to Cuba as an agent of mercy.

CAPTAIN GENERAL BLANCO,

General Blanco has been in Cuba before and has several times demonstrated his energetic and severe methods of dealing with the insurgents. He succeeded General Campos in the governorship of the island early in 1878 and held the post until 1881. During this period the second insurrection, known as the "Little war," raged. By Blanco's instructions, carried out by the infamous Julio Vilega, now governor general of the Philippines, fully 2,000 men were put to death without even the shadow of a trial. He is reported also to have said that those who refused to recognize the terms of surrender agreed to by his lieutenant, General Valera, and who transported General Calixto Garcia and his officers after they had been assured that if they would lay down their arms their lives would not be molested.

Blanco was captain general of the Philippine islands from 1880 to December, 1885, when the insurgent war in those islands caused him to be superseded by General Polavieja. He was charged with weakness in his efficiency and leniency toward the natives, and not long ago he denied, in a long article which he gave to the press, any such conduct.

It is understood that Captain General Blanco does not go to Cuba with free hands, but that he will act there in strict compliance with instructions that he is to receive from the cabinet. He promises, however, to act with equal energy against the insurgents and to establish peace by the same methods with which he won an ovation in 1875. It is said by some persons who claim to be here well informed, however, that the energy which he has at his command is small, for he is all gone in body and, physically and mentally. TRACK INSPECTION.

Pennsylvania Officials About to Start Out.

A Number Are Stopping Trains and Across Them. A New Location at the Fort Wayne Township Manufacturing.

Tomorrow morning General Manager L. F. Loree, of the Pennsylvania, will leave Pittsburg, accompanied by all the officials of the maintenance of way department, including road supervisors, on the annual track inspection of the entire northwestern system. There will be about 110 persons in the party and they will travel by two special trains, one of which will have attached the track indicator car that was described recently in these columns a short time ago. The party will probably reach this city Wednesday morning. Chief Engineer Thomas Kodd and J. F. Miller, general superintendent of the northwestern system, will accompany the inspection party.

A NEW SAFETY DEVICE.

Consul Morris, at Ghent, Belgium, reports to the state department at Washington, a new invention recently tried on the state railway of France and which is intended to check and stop trains. The device is operated from the station and when placed 250 yards away will stop the train before it reaches the station. It is fastened to the rails and when in operation catches a lever hanging from the passing locomotive which causes an air valve to open and puts the brakes immediately in action. In connection with this device is another which connects the grade crossing gates with it in such a manner that the gates cannot be opened without the brakes from the track is in operation.

ABOUT THE EEL RIVER CONTROVERSY.

The Toledo Bee says: "The fact that the Wabash has consented to the appointment of a receiver for the Eel River road, which has been leased and operated by the Wabash for the past ten years, is the subject of considerable speculation in railroad circles. The Eel River extends from Logansport to Butler, Ind. The Wabash owns the line from Butler to Detroit and from Montpelier, O., to Chicago. A cessation of the lease of the Eel River would therefore not affect the Chicago line of the Wabash in the least. In conversation with a Wabash official a Bee representative was informed that the Eel River division has been costing the former road in the neighborhood of $50,000 per year in the way of interest charges. Whether or not it is the desire of the Wabash to get rid of this expense and construct its own connecting link cannot be guessed to a certainty, but it is believed in some quarters that this is what the Wabash is aiming at. A short line between Toledo and Montpelier would give a direct line from this city to Chicago and be the only thing that seems to stand in the way of such a scheme is the fact that the company would then be compelled to establish its own terminal facilities here, as the road would come in direct competition with the Lake Shore, and would, therefore, not be allowed the use of the union depot."

EAST BOUND SHIPMENTS.

One car, Oct. 21.—East bound freight shipments for the week ending October 14 amounted to 60,949 tons, against 67,135 the previous week, and 60,782 the previous year, divided among the roads as follows: Pan Handle, 8,338 tons; Michigan Central, 5,124; Wabash, 7,307; Lake Shore, 8,052; Fort Wayne, 6,144; Baltimore and Ohio, 5,830; Grand Trunk, 7,098; Nickel Plate, 4,767; Erie, 7,562; Big Four, 3,732. The lake lines carried 1,6, 667 tons.

BRIEF MENTION.

Machinist Fred Rops has taken a position in the Wabash shops.

F. P. Wardle, a car builder employed at the east car shops, is on the sick list.

C. A. Tyler, freight conductor on the Pittsburg, is lying very low at 126 Sharpsee avenue.

The fog this morning was the cause of delay in the arrival of several of the passenger trains on the roads running into this city. No accidents have been reported.

Louis Altevogt resumed his duties in the Bass machine shop this morning. The reader will remember that Mr. Altevogt suffered a paralytic stroke a short time ago. He has fully recovered.

FALL TIME FANCIES.

THE DYING YEAR CELEBRATED IN PROSE AND VERSE.

The Autumn Forests That Put to Shame the Weird Grandeur of a Far Day Dream Painted With Crests Lemonade—Rare Fashion in the Evening Leaf.

And now the leaflet assumes the fragile rust of the breakfast bacon when it has been with the lover of the mottled tomatoe buns. The forest in one grand, undulating pavilion of dazzling color that puts to shame the weird grandeur of a gay day dream painted with cream lemonade. The trees has moulded from the rock mush to the delight of the man who dreams finely of his front teeth that are no more and has taken up its abode in the cab, the home of the salmon. The pigeon is popping over the cuddy blaze, and the pear and yellow dog are barking symbol in color of the world, except some whose hare is fair accord the away and keep on steer-ling without a break, enthused with the glory of the dying day, and the heather on which the small boy cooks sweet potatoes in the ruddy glimmer of the old gray mare's tail, every which he has gathered on the bosom of the ancient garret. The cartridge plays his strain mile on the fallow tree, and fellow keepers a silent whisper when he lies upon the disk, disturbs alighted and unchanged with water cress.

Now the trees were painted
Stripping along the banks,
For the frosts that were the best
Nipped the chestnuts in the bur,
And the shadows, darkling, darkened
In a twinkling of delight,
Over the turnpike, that shortened
All his blessings over night.

In the silent aisles of the forest, where the evergreens painted bloom if until he became a multicamillia suite, the queen pattern on the dew leaves and produces a sort of a liquid lifts the gent from his normal reverie, even as unscrupulously as could a woman's wreath of pearls and beans in the wistful pallor of twilight, when a purple curtains falls and the spirit and weary waves in the droppings of ruffled bulls, when the pumpkin brightly glimmers and the moon leads and ripe, and the Bob Ford in the thicket plays upon the Jersey pipe. Oh, the days are 344 purple, and the leaflet does the same, and gradient a full of wonder. Edgar Wilson Nye is sad, and has departed and the simon's is dead, for the cider mill is run, and the soda fountain's dead. The wild fire dies away over the new fence, and the reader repents that he can't take root and grow on the blackboard and be duck when the cry is "Play ball!" opens the next game, and the umpire again becomes eligible for the continuous of the ribald exclamation and amenable to the unwritten laws which makes it proper for the mutilated to denounce and flambagaze upon his memory.

On the cover
Near the pear
Is a pile of wood
Which is destroyed
With a saw.

There is rare pastime in the falling leaf, whose dainty embroideries make it queer to deliberate a reversion of nature to warrant the farmer in sowing it beneath the cow for a bed. Jack Frost has brought out its bloody cross of beauty with his stricken and most unscrupulous skill, and when you get into its spirit to filled with a peculiar beauty, a symphony of vibrant color that lights his soul and manifests itself in a yearning to be more perfect in the world's progress when he sees fully so and finds it in the autumn leaf. Even through his solemn wanderers and musings his narrower is lastened restless. "Alas, alack, a well a day!"

The poet does no longer pare forth in great hopes to the bird behind the entry, and the vines of the honeysuckle ramble at pendant interest, while the pedestrian and grass carver wanders knuckles in anguish and moaning, "Woe is me, Alhama," or words to that effect, while he runs his to the wood shed and gathers more shavings with a heart full of hope and a rattail file. His days drip from his patriarchal beard like 14 carat diamonds, and he is a picture of despair fit to hang on the walls of the Vatican.

Oh, the poorer boy is scurrying
And the Hessian fly is crying,
And the pear and beurre quirks
Are the prey of the hungry worms,
And the plaintive, pining cricket
Sings of dampness and of hushes,
Where the Persian
Clings to life
Over the fence;
And the apple-tree and pear,
Oh, the apple-tree and pear,
Feels with grief the falling leaves,
As the sere and yellow year
Sighs and sighs and sighs and sighs,
Where he knocks the rustic cider
Through the bung.

The persimmon has already assumed the frost, but still it pucker the small boy's mouth until it feels like a wash board and he makes faces that would scare the Cornado of a politician's dream.

Now the chicken that's in double
And the cider-mill's in the mouth,
And the sausage machine is busy
As the time draws near to hush,
And the stranger pie is ready
For the relish it will be,
And the pantry shelf is loaded
With its mince meat and its fruit,
Now the year reclines in splendor
And in yellow leaves drapery,
And the coffin-boards are ready
And the turkey time's a-hovering
Near the beechen tree.

A GREAT DIVINE.

Bishop W. X. Ninde Preaches in Fort Wayne.

Two Large Audiences Hear the Eloquent Minister of the Wayne Street M. E. Church.

Rev. William X. Ninde, D. D., of Detroit, a bishop of Methodist Episcopal church, occupied the pulpit of the Wayne street church both morning and evening yesterday. At both services the big auditorium of the church was filled. The prominence of Bishop Ninde in his church and his eminence as a pulpit orator drew the Wayne street church many persons from other congregations.

In the evening Bishop Ninde preached a powerful sermon from the words of the Prophet Zephaniah, 3:17: "He will rest in His love." In the course of his singularly eloquent and forcible discourse Bishop Ninde paid a glowing tribute to the power of love. The Bible, he said, was in short a great commentary on love, and showed how God loved His creatures. Those metaphysicians who directed their logic against the Christian belief that the Infinite God could feel and be moved by love as man conceives it, he said, made no appeal to him nor should they to Christians anywhere. The Creator who implanted love in the human heart Himself must love what He had created.

In the closing part of his discourse Bishop Ninde said that the greatest work that was now going on in the church was the tearing down of the barriers that had so long divided the classes from the masses in the worship of God. That had long been the shame of the church, but it was passing away. The lowly, the wretched and the outcast now has reached and were being reached through the various instrumentalities of the church.

At the close of the services nearly all those who had heard the splendid sermon pressed forward to shake hands with the venerable bishop and a delightful impromptu reception followed for a few minutes in the crowded hall.

A WILD DELIRIUM.

Hardscraper John Dougherty Escapes From the Hospital.

Desperately Ill, Wanders Through the Streets Like a Maniac—Caught by Police Officers.

John Dougherty, a hardscraper, was taken to the St. Joe hospital Saturday, suffering with a bad case of delirium tremens. Early last evening Dougherty overpowered the nurse and jumped through a window. He fled through the streets only partially clad and was finally caught in the neighborhood of the Fairfield avenue railroad crossing by officer Stevens. Blood was streaming from several wounds on his head and face, caused by broken glass in his leap for liberty. The patrol wagon conveyed him to the jail hospital, where a close watch was kept on him the rest of the night. He shows signs of becoming rational and will probably be all right in a few days.

WESTMINSTER CONCERTS

To be Repeated This Evening—Mrs. Root to Assist.

Westminster church was well filled last night and the hearers were greeted with a most delightful service. Dr. Leeper spoke on the theme, "Sons of a Martyr or Sons of God," and sought to show his hearers the value of the seed, which distinguishes man from the lower animal creation. He cared not where a man came from, but where he should go after this life. The musical selections were well rendered. Professor Corns has a trained tenor voice and is a composer of considerable reputation, and frequently renders his own compositions. His ability as a director is making itself evident in the excellent rendrings of the chorus of trained voices and, assisted by such artists as Mrs. Fisher, Miss Tillie Lindeman and Professor Jeannion, he will be easily able to sustain the high reputation of Westminster church. Rev. Leeper announced two Westminster concerts to be given during the season, in which assistance will be given by Reineke's orchestra, Miss Anna Regal Reed, of Chicago, and others. A part of the object of these concerts is to furnish proper entertainments to the people at popular prices and the admission will be twenty five cents for the two if the tickets are subscribed for, and otherwise twenty-five cents single admission.

HOUSES BURNED.

Firemen Have a Lively Time to Fight Early Sunday Morning—The Losses.

About 2 o'clock Sunday morning Theodore Robbins, of 85 Hugh street, was awakened by the crackling of flames and, rushing into the yard, he discovered his house burning. The entire east side of the building was in flames. Mr. Robbins gave the alarm and assisted his wife and baby to escape. The inmates of the other houses were awakened in time to save a few household effects. The house at 83 Hugh street was occupied by James Gay, the plumber and owned by his brother. The house east of Mr. Robbins was occupied by Frank Smith, a carpenter employed at the east yards. Both houses were owned by Henry Meyer, of East Lewis street. The fire is thought to have originated in the garret of the Robbins house. This was entirely destroyed and the others badly damaged. All the houses are partially covered by insurance.

A PLUNGE TO DEATH.

the river, they are believed to be in the day coach, which lies in water up to its roof on King's dock. The diver took six bodies out of this car last evening and said he could find no more. A good many believe, however, that other dead bodies will be found in this car when it is raised. Passengers who escaped from this car and the crew have said that at least twelve persons perished in the day coach.

Sounds were made to locate the locomotive, near which are supposed to lie the bodies of Engineer Forte, Fireman Tompkins and A. G. Mackay, private secretary to Superintendent Van Etten. The engine is supposed to be lying in fifty feet of water, under or near the sleeping cars Hermes and Niobe. Half of the side of the day coach from which many bodies have been taken has been torn away and it is possible that some bodies of those drowned floated away or else are at the bottom of the river.

The work of searching for bodies, which had been temporarily suspended at 5 o'clock this morning after the parlor car Glen Alpine had been hoisted, was resumed at daybreak. As the occupants of the other two sleepers in the river have been accounted for by the conductor and porters, it is to be presumed that no Wagner passengers were killed. There was found in the car Glen Alpine in valises and pocketbooks $400 in money, in sums ranging from $15 to $300, and eight gold watches, one of them being a lady's chatelain. Some of the watches bear monograms, by which they can be identified.

There were also found a variety of diamonds, sleeve buttons, studs and a pearl pin, all kinds of wearing apparel, satchels, umbrellas and shoes.

AN EXPERT'S OPINION.

Roadmaster Otis, who is considered one of the most expert track builders in the country, told a reporter of the Associated Press that the sinking of the roadbed was due primarily to a considerable unnecessable action of the water on the embankment. The sand and gravel had been washed out, leaving a crust under the track, which collapsed under the weight of the train as it. This could not underestand why the crumbling wall of solid masonry gave way as it did.

Trains are now moving with but little delay, on one track, and we shall have two tracks in operation by tomorrow. We shall not refill the sunken section until we are absolutely certain of the cause of its collapse, and determine the best method of rebuilding it."

The Parlor Conference of Charities at the residence of Mr. M. B. Fisher, 227 West Wayne street, Saturday evening, October 23, was well attended notwithstanding the short, impromptu notice and the many social engagements of that evening. There were present the president and secretary of the Associated Charities, the president of the Relief union, several members of committees, and other friends and workers. Upon invitation the northern secretary of the Industrial Missionary association of Alabama, Rev. C. N. Pond, made a statement of the work of that society both among the poorest of plantation negroes in the south and throughout the country in general; the propagation of the most recent ideas of economical, preventive and curative charity. He described practical methods now actually in use in such cities as Indianapolis, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Erie, Dunkirk, Auburn and elsewhere. The statement was interspersed with frequent questions and followed by a general and free conference.

LAKE WILL BE LOWERED.

A Scheme to Reconcile the Wants Among the Shores of Rome City's Lakes.

The Grand Rapids Railroad company, at the request of resident owners, will lower the lake at Rome City four feet in order that the thick growth of weeds near the shores may be removed. The water is now going out at the rate of four inches a day. When the vegetation is exposed it will be allowed to dry and then a match will be applied. Cottagers will be notified when the water has gone down far enough and they are expected to be on hand to fix up their beaches and bathing places before the lake is allowed to rise to the proper level again.

FRANCE WAS IN GLOOM.

Great Business Came Not All at Once in 1871.

A hitherto unpublished incident of recent international history has come to the light in a kind of sequel to a conversation with the Emperor Napoleon, lately published in the Lond. Times. In the beginning of the year 1872 the English Government, acting which Lord Rosebery personally, adopted the policy of supporting, followed by England in the far east and Africa generally, declared by the European governments, except that of Italy, to have determined on boldly declaring war upon and France and crushing her scattered squadrons and her home fleet before Germany could come from any quarter. The French action in Rome, when the French ships of war bombarded the Roman batteries at Civitavecchia, at the mouth of the Mediterranean, on which Rome, the capital, is situated, is cited as the opportunity Lord Rosebery is asked for.

On the 26th of July, 1870, he sent for M. d'Harcourtcelles, the French charge d'affaires in London in the absence of the ambassador, and coolly informed him that if his government went any further it would be war. In answer after Lord Rosebery retired from the room, the Italian ambassador to the foreign office, and asked him if his government was ready to act at once with England and France. Count Tornielli—such is the name—to his great astonishment, found himself alone. He left the room the German Government, in its turn, to with the old gentleman as a member of the triple alliance, and the Emperor William without hesitating to address the Italian Government to refuse it. The publication is evident has created considerable excitement in the political world, as has given rise to all manner of speculation as to the object of it.
